"COWBOY BARONET" GOES AFTER TITLE

Oklahoma's Champion Steer Roper Proves to be Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave.

SAILS TO-DAY TO GET ESTATE

But He Still Hears the Call of the Wild and Will Return and Buy a Ranch in the West.

The room of "Mr. Harrison" in Mills Hotel No. 3 at Thirty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue is vacant, and a well-knit, clear-eyed Englishman of 38 will to-day be on the sea bound for London to meet his lawyers and to claim his title of Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave, his old Norman castle in Leicester, his 6,000 acres, and his right to appoint a vicar for his domain and his tenants.

The Norman castle has accommodations for sixty guests and a stable that quarters forty horses, and the estate has an income of $15,000 a year.

"Mr. Harrison" made the jump from Bald Knob, Colorado, to New York, and spent the last ten days here. He declined to announce on what ship he would sail, what name he would use as a traveler, but said good-bye to his friend W. F. Bullock, the New York correspondent of The London Daily Mail.

Sir Genille has become famous in the West and to some extent in England as the "Cowboy Baronet." He was the second son of Sir Mylles Cave-Browne-Cave, the eleventh Baronet of his line, who died in February of last year. There was ahead of him in line for the title and the estate a brother, Geoffry Lisle, but he died in 1880. The death of the father left the Baronetcy and the estate to Genille, who has for the past fifteen years been busting bronchos, roping steers, and herding cattle in the West.

Not long ago the appearance of the "Cowboy Baronet" was heralded in the East, and a distant relative of the deceased head of the house in England was proclaimed as the heir. On his arrival in London he was met by a score or more of the nobility who wanted to welcome him back from the Wild West of America and who found that their reception was ill-timed and wrongly placed.

The real "Cowboy Baronet" has been here in New York for the last ten days, dining every day with Mr. Bullock and sleeping in a room in Mills Hotel No. 3.

"My dear boy," said Sir Genille to an acquaintance yesterday, when he was asked why he took a 7 by 4 apartment in the Mills Hotel, "you see, I'm a cowboy for just a few more days. I have been making my living by breaking wild horses and roping cattle. The money I have has been earned in your own Western way, and, besides, the soft life of your big hotels does not appeal to me. I have been sleeping under the heavens, on the ground, up with the break of day, and astride my horse Blue Dog. I'm the champion steer roper of the West, with only one man ahead of me, the champion of the world, and Blue Dog did more to make the record than I did."

The "Cowboy Baronet" sighed.

"But Blue Dog is in good hands, and I can't tell when the call of the West will exert itself on me again."

Sir Genille wore a faded red necktie. The band of it kept crawling up on his neck, and he kept shoving it down with muttered exclamations of hate for the thing.

"Lord! Lord!" he exclaimed. "We don't use neckties in the West, but the life on the plains has been altogether delightful to me. When I first learned of it I was in London. I did not care to be a club lounger, and was then a sort of riding master in the Thirteenth Hussars, stationed at Liverpool. I met a ranchman from this country, and he told me that if I ever wanted to do real riding and make a living at it I should come to America and be a cowboy. Soon after that I started for this country, and I had £300 in my pocket. When I got to Arizona the first thing I was asked was whether I could ride. I showed my employer that I could, but my first year was full of trouble. I got all of the outlaw horses that could be brought to our ranch, and I rode and broke them. In those days they used to pay me $10 each for every wild horse I broke in. It was fun and lots of money.

"The cowboys in the West laughed at me at first and played all sorts of tricks on me as a green Englishman, but they soon found out that I could ride with the best of them. I learned to use the lasso also, and made my own way. They are a mighty fine lot, fine riders, and fine men.

"The years that I have been in the West have been full of pleasant experiences. I have ranched in Wyoming, Kansas, Arizona, Colorado, and other States, and have had some pretty exciting experiences on the Mexican border. I was in charge of a big ranch in Arizona when a lot of my employer's cattle were stolen. I stole it back with some to boot from an adjacent ranch. The head of that ranch came at me, but I had learned to shoot from the hip without pulling my gun from the holster, and when the American who wanted to get the drop on me started to try to get it he found himself covered and we became friends."

Sir Genille doesn't know just when he will get back to this country, but he has no idea of being out of it for any too long a time. He has become enamored of the West. He is known among the cowpunchers as "Kitty" because he dressed as a woman one night when a cowboy in Arizona was trying to elope with the only woman within fifty miles, and impersonated her during an elopement which resulted in a laugh on the would-be elopers.

"Why, they're the best people on earth," he said. "When I left Omaha on my way East the whole gang, between 300 and 400 of them, rode into town and fired a salute for me. Then they gave me a banquet and one of them tore up my railroad ticket. It looked as if I would have to stay in the West, but when I told them that I couldn't do anything but the right thing and go back to England and become a Baronet for a while anyway they went and bought me a Pullman reservation and all that, and gave me a banquet in a big shed outdoors. At Chicago the cowpunchers in the Miller Brothers' show gave me another send-off. I want to get with some of the boys in the Buffalo Bill gang, but I don't dare do it. I might never get back to England."

The steer-roping championship, which Sir Genille holds, was won at Oklahoma City four years ago. He threw and bound his steer in twenty-two seconds. The world's championship record is nineteen seconds. For the championship of the West there is a gold medal, which has to be held for five years before it becomes a lasting trophy with the holder. Sir Genille believes that the contest this year will still find him with twenty-two seconds as the record, and that the medal will be his forever, as will be the title and the estates left him in England.

On the estates of the "Cowboy Baronet" are coal mines that have not been operated for years. There are also valuable pipe-clay deposits, and as soon as his lawyers in London have put these advantages to the best use and his income of $15,000 a year has been increased he will buy one of the big ranches of the West in this country, and his ranch house will be open house for all of the cowboys of Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, and contiguous territory.

The "Cowboy Baronet's" estate is six miles out from the village of Ashby de la Zouche, in Leicester. It is an old Norman settlement, and his castle goes back to the early days of the history of English nobility. His family sprang from Jordan de Cave, who inherited the lordships of North and South Cave, in York County, at the death of Wyarmus de Cave. This Wyarmus de Cave got his lands from William the Conqueror in 1080.

TORNADOES KILL MANY.

Eight Known Dead in Oklahoma—Other States Hit.

WOODWARD, Okla., May 11.—At least eight persons were killed and scores of others injured in the several tornadoes in Northwestern Oklahoma yesterday evening.

The dead are J. E. Hale, Little Robe, Ellis County; Mrs. J. E. Hale, Little Robe; two unknown persons, Arnett, Ellis County; Dr. J. Howser, Vici, Woodward County; Arthur Sible, Mutual, Woodward County; William Hand, Estelle, Major County, and Mrs. Young, Seiling, Dewey County.

The disaster seems to have consisted of a succession of tornadoes occurring between 5 o'clock A. M. and 1 o'clock P. M. They appeared first in the western part of the devastated district and moved toward the east.

The most serious results were in the vicinity of Arnett, where fully thirty persons are believed to have suffered broken limbs. Nearly all of these victims are residents of farms. The only town known to have been destroyed is Vici, a Post Office in the southern part of Woodward County, where it is said there is not a house left standing.

Dr. Howser at Vici was taking refuge in a dugout when he was killed. A horse was lifted by the wind and dashed through the top of the dugout, burying the victim beneath the entire earth roof of the dugout and the weight of the animal's body.

At Mutual fifteen young people had gathered. The storm lifted the house off the floor on which they were seated, leaving the floor and the young people unharmed.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., May 11.—A tornado swept through Mercer and Henry Counties this afternoon, touching several towns and doing considerable damage. Mrs. Gottch, an elderly woman, was killed at Cleveland, where the storm demolished a school, injuring several children.

At Millersburg fifteen houses were destroyed or damaged and two persons were injured. Wires are down and details are difficult to learn.

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 11.—The destructive tornado which caused several deaths in Oklahoma last night extended as far south as Gainesville, Texas, and towns in that section. Hail at Gainesville to-day damaged crops nd broke windows. The residence of Thomas Nance was blown down, and his family narrowly escaped death.

MRS. S. V. R. CRUGER WEDS.

Novelist Becomes the Bride of Wade Chance, Fifteen Years Her Junior.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Washington was greatly surprised to-day to learn of the marriage this morning of Mrs. S. Van Rensselaer Cruger, now of this city, but formerly of New York, and Wade Chance of Canton, Ohio, and London. The ceremony, which was witnessed only by the members of the bride's household and Dr. Lloyd Magruder, took place at 11 o'clock at the bride's home. The Rev. Alfred Harding of St. Paul's Episcopal Church officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Chance immediately after the ceremony went to the office of a local newspaper to insert the marriage notice, and later lunched at a downtown hotel, incidentally receiving the congratulations of several friends they met by the way.

They will remain in Washington for the present, but later expect to reside in London, where Mr. Chance has been engaged in literary work. He is not so well known as his bride in literary and social circles. He is also her junior by ten or fifteen years.

Mrs. Chance is the daughter of the late Thomas Wentworth Storrow of Boston, but was born in Paris, where much of her childhood and youth was passed. Under the nom de plume of Julien Gordon she has published several successful novels, and also has been a frequent contributor to the leading magazines. On the death of her husband, Col. Steven Van Rensselaer Cruger, she gave up her residence in New York to pass the Winter with Washington friends. Later she leased a commodious old-fashioned house near the Potomac, quite a mile away from the outposts of society, where she has passed the greater part of each year.

INTENDED TO KILL ROOSEVELT

Carrie Ade, Insane Cook from New Rochelle, Is Arrested in Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—A well-dressed woman was arrested to-day at the Tenth Street depot. She gave the name of Miss Carrie Ade, and stated that she lived at 115 Centre Avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y. After alighting from a carriage at the station she seated herself on the steps and began to empty the contents of several suit cases.

When an officer accosted the woman she told him that she was about to board a train for Washintgon, where she intended to kill President Roosevelt. She was taken into custody.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 11.—Carrie Ade was formerly employed by Hugo Zeigfeld of 115 Centre Avenue, New Rochelle, as cook. Mrs. Zeigfeld is a daughter of Former Inspector McLaughlin of the New York City Police Department.

Mrs. Zeigfeld says that she employed the girl six months ago through an employment agency. After she had been with her a short time she began to act queerly. She sang incessantly, and was always disturbing the other help in the house. Mrs. Zeigfeld learned that the girl had been confined for eighteen months in the Manhattan Insane Asylum, and for that reason discharged her.

The loss of some property in Marion, Ohio, which was taken for a railroad improvement, is supposed to have unbalanced her mind. She was working in Buffalo when President McKinley was shot, and is said to have declared that it "was a good thing."

CITY AT TRUST'S MERCY.

President Ahearn Says Bids Show Necessity of Public Asphalt Plant.

Borough President Ahearn decided yesterday that the bids for the repairs to the asphalt pavement were proof positive of the existence of an asphalt plant trust and the necessity of a public asphalt plant. Altogether there are 150,000 square yards of pavement which need repairing this year, and when the work was first advertised all the bids were for $1.49 a yard.

As the work had been done two years ago for 75 cents a yard, and last year for 83, the Borough President refused all the offers. He advertised a second time and again received a uniform bid of $1.49. Once more he advertised and opened the bids yesterday. The result was uniform bids at $1.48.

ROOSEVELT STOPS LABOR LEGISLATION

Will Make No More Effort for Anti-Injunction Bill or Sherman Law Change.

GOMPERS ASKED TOO MUCH

Demanded That Measure Should Lean Entirely to Labor—Adjournment of Congress Probable May 23.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—After a protracted conference with the President this morning, Representative Townsend, who has been steering the President's programme in the House, announced that the supporters of the White House will make no further efforts this session for the passage of the Anti-Injunction bill or for consideration by the House of Hepburn's amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law. The responsibility for the failure of both measures is laid at the door of Gompers and his followers.

The labor leaders, said Mr. Townsend, have been so insistent that whatever bill is reported should lean entirely to the side of labor that all possibility of harmony among even those most favorably inclined toward labor was destroyed.

At the interview in the White House the President pointed out that the demand for labor legislation had greatly diminished since it became apparent that whatever measure might finally be put through Congress would be free from partisan provisions. Even the Civic Federation bill, said Mr. Townsend, which was introduced by Representative Hepburn, met with severe criticism at the hands of President Gompers, while every bill bearing on injunctions has been at once condemned.

It is the opinion of the President that the absence of any general expression on the bills from the rank and file of labor means simply that there is no real demand for immediate legislation. He and Mr. Townsend came easily to an agreement on the point that the demand was in the first place started by Gompers and a few leaders, and that subsequently these leaders killed whatever chance there might have been for the enactment of labor legislation.

With these two items removed from the President's programme, an open road is left for carrying out most of his plan of campaign as mapped out at the beginning of the session. A general employers' liability bill has already been enacted, and Representative Alexander's Government Employes' Liability bill is expected soon to be reported favorably by the Judiciary Committee. The Campaign Publicity bill is already on the House calendar and will be taken up this week or next.

The question of the postal savings bank is still in doubt, while he has obtained no appropriation for inland waterways. These, combined with the refusal of the House and Senate to vote for four battleships, constitutes the breaches that have been made in the Presidential campaign.

Mr. Townsend said that in dropping his plan for calling a party conference on the injunction and trust law amendments he did not mean to leave the whole matter for good. He may introduce a bill at a later session.

After the legislative programme had been arranged Representative J. E. Watson, Republican whip, had a talk with Senator Aldrich. Both agreed to try for adjournment on May 23.

As though to show what it could do when it really set its mind to it, the Senate to-day finished up the agricultural appropriation, whisked through a half dozen private measures, passed the Lighthouse Establishment bill, carrying approximately $900,000, and got half way through the Post Office Appropriation bill.

WILL PASS VREELAND BILL.

House Republicans Agree in Conference—To Put It Through Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The House Republicans to-night agreed by a vote, 128 to 16, to pass the new Vreeland Currency bill reported to the House this afternoon. It has already been arranged to put it through the Senate, Senator Aldrich having receded from his position that any currency legislation there must be in the form of his bill, which insures the enactment of substantially this measure at this session.

There was a long and somewhat spirited debate in the conference, led by Chairman Fowler of the Banking and Currency Committee, who was supported by Representatives Prince of Illinois and Hayes of California. The main point of their attack was the reserve provision for the proposed currency, and the provision for redemption by the Government on demand.

In all, twenty-four different amendments were offered, all of which were voted down. Prince and Hayes quit the conference in disgust when they saw that they could accomplish nothing they wanted. The procedure for passing the bill will be determined by the Rules Committee of the House to-morrow.

The bill ratified to-night provides for an issue of emergency currency not to exceed $500,000,000, obtainable for circulation through the National Clearing House Association's scheme.

BOY ATTACKS HIS TEACHER.

Eleven-Year-Old Pupil Beats Miss Garland with His Fists.

Harry Aveis, 11 years old, of 1,554 Pitkin Avenue, yesterday attacked Miss Faith Garland, his school teacher, in the classroom and beat her so cruelly with his fists that she may be unable to attend to her duties to-day. The boy was taken to the Brownsville Police Station by Policeman John Cohn and held on a charge of assault made by Miss Garland.

The boy is a pupil in one of the lower grades of Public School 66, at Osborn Street and Sutter Avenue. Yesterday afternoon the boy in front of him received a blow on the head with a strap. Miss Garland called Harry forward.

"If yer want me yer got to catch me," he said.

Miss Garland walked toward him. The boy jumped from his seat and scrambled across desks and pupils to the other side of the room. Miss Garland pursued him, and when she caught him he turned on her and beat her about the chest, shoulders, and face before other teachers could overpower him.

MRS. LONGWORTH'S JOKE.

Puts Tack on a Chair in House Gallery and Visitor Sits on It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Washington Times this afternoon printed the following:

"Like the naughty boy with the tack, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of the President, played a cruel joke on a man in the public gallery of the House of Representatives to-day.

"Mrs. Longworth had found a tack on the floor of the Executive Gallery and put it in a seat in the public gallery, which is separated from the Executive territory by an iron railing. A man came in, sat on the tack, and proceeded to jump into the air with all the force of a bullet discharged from a modern rifle.

"She had been sitting in the gallery a few moments, and was beginning to look decidedly bored, when she espied the tack. She put her hand under the iron railing and placed the tack with mathematical precision on the seat in the public gallery. There followed a period of intense suspense for the President's daughter. Every time the door of the public gallery opened she looked slyly around to see if the victim had arrived.

"Finally he did arrive. He was middle-aged, dignified, and weighed down with the importance of hurrying to a seat and hearing every word the legislators said. He sat down, accomplishing the motion with that slowness which characterizes stiffness of the knees. Mrs. Longworth looked intensely pleased.

"Then, like the burst of a bubble on the fountain, like the bolt from the blue, like the ball from the cannon, he sprang into the ambient atmosphere, painfully conscious he had come into close contact with something sharp. He seemed angry. He glared around.

"But the President's daughter was looking the other way."

GOOD FLIGHTS BY WRIGHTS.

One for 2 7-16 Miles—Rate Over 46 Miles an Hour.

Special to The New York Times.

MANTEO, N. C., May 11.—The Wright brothers made two flights to-day with their flying machine at Kill Devil Hill. The flights were much longer than any they have heretofore made there, one of them being for a distance of two and seven-sixteenths miles and the other for two and one-sixteenth. The longer flight was made at the rate of 46.774 miles an hour and the shorter at the rate of 32.281 miles an hour.

For the long flight the machine, starting from the foot of Kill Devil Hill, was steered in a northerly course, along the beach for a mile and three-eights, then around a sand hill for five-sixteenths of a mile, and then back toward the starting point for three-quarters of a mile. The machine was skillfully handled in making its curves.

Another flight one mile in length also was made to-day.

The Wrights take no chances with their machine. It is at once brought to the ground if the least little mishap befalls it.

The inventors are now working out a plan whereby the machine may be made to fly from the spot at which it lights. Now it has to be towed back to the starting rail before it can be made to fly again.

GIRL SHOT WITH AN ARROW.

Fired by a Boy Who Was "Dueling" with Another—Child Dying.

May O'Connell, a little girl living in East New York, was taken to the Bradford Street Hospital last night in a dying condition. While playing near her home she was shot in the head with an arrow made out of an umbrella steel. The arrow struck her behind the right ear, the sharp point of the steel penetrating the skull.

Two small boys, one of whom, the police say, was Peter Gambaza of 2,726 Atlantic Avenue, were playing "Indian duels." They were armed with bows and arrows made of umbrella ribs. May O'Connell walked behind the boys just as they were exchanging shots in their sham fight. Gambaza fired and the O'Connell girl put her hand to the side of her head and collapsed.

The boys ran away, and two men who were passing picked the child up and ran with her to a drug store. There the arrow was extracted. The girl bled profusely, and a young woman who was passing made a compress and stopped the flow of blood until the girl was cared for by Dr. Davis of the Bradford Street Hospital.

The police were trying last night to find the two boys.

HATPINS ROUT THIEVES.

Mrs. M. E. Markey Stabs Four Men, and Policeman Catches One.

With a hatpin in each hand Mrs. Mary E. Markey of 117 Sands Street, Brooklyn, stood off four men who attacked her in East New York last night in a lonely street. She stabbed one of them several times and each of his companions received at least one thrust of the woman's weapons.

The woman was returning home when, in Vesta Avenue, near Glenmore Avenue, the men attacked her. They demanded her purse and whatever jewelry she wore. One of them seized her by the arm with a grasp so strong that his fingers bruised the flesh.

The rough treatment and her peril suddenly inspired the victim with daring. Like a flash she drew two hatpins and drove the shaft of one deep into the shoulder of the man who held her. The other men endeavored to hold her, but she was too quick for them. Her attack on the four with the hatpins was too much and they ran. Policeman James Brown of the Brownsville Station heard her shrieks and ran up. Three of the men escaped. The fourth, Andrew Antrun, 29 years, of 753 Liberty Avenue, was locked up in the Brownsville Station charged by Mrs. Markey with assault and attempted robbery.

7 PASSENGERS HURT IN ELEVATED CRASH

Third Avenue Motorman Failed to See Signals on Forward Train Stopped on a Curve.

FIREMEN TO THE RESCUE

Carry Panic-Stricken Women and Children Down on Ladders—Line Blocked an Hour.

The failure of a motorman to see the signals on the rear end of another train led to a rear-end collision on the Third Avenue elevated railroad at 143d Street at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in which many persons were cut and bruised and the windows of both trains shattered.

Those seriously injured were:

AMMERMAN, WILLIAM, motorman, 1,478 Brook Avenue; head and legs cut.

BUTLER, Mrs. ANNIE, 232 East Ninety-fifth Street; left side of face bruised and severe shock.

DICKEL, Mrs. J., 153 East 118th Street; severe shock.

FLUM, Mrs. ELIZABETH, 317 East Seventy-second Street; contusions of the head, back and hips, and severe shock.

HUGHES, L. F., 6 years old, 131 East Eightieth Street; head and hands cut.

KIRKER, MRS. O. H., 2853 Bainbridge Avenue; back injured and severe shock.

KIRKER, MARIE, five-year-old daughter of Mrs. O. H. Kirker; cuts about the head and contusions.

MAHANE, MRS. B., 413 Brook Avenue; cuts and abrasions of the neck.

ROSEN, JENNIE, 1521 Fulton Avenue; contusions of the back and general shock.

WARD, MRS. JOHN R., 1144 Tinton Avenue; general shock.

WARD, RUSSELL, three-year-old son of Mrs. John R. Ward; contusions of head.

Train 1,542, driven by Motorman George Taylor, had just left the 143d Street station, southbound, and was stopped by signals at a sharp curve, when Train 1,543 left the station, and, believing that the forward train had got clear, William Ammerman, the motorman, went ahead and crashed into the rear car of the first train.

The shrieks of the panic-stricken women and children as they made a rush for the doors, accompanied by the crashing of glass, led the people in the street to believe that a serious fatality had happened, and a great crowd soon gathered. Fire engines and ambulances were quickly summoned, and the firemen ran their ladders up and fetched the women and children down. Six women and one man who had received cuts and bruises were attended and sent home.

Traffic was held up for an hour on both tracks, and the stations all along the line were badly congested.

Detective Bernstein of the Alexander Avenue station arrested Motorman Ammerman on a technical charge of assault.

In explaining the cause of the collision, General Manager Hedley said that on account of the sharp curve in the track near 143d Street Motorman Ammerman could not see far enough ahead to prevent the accident and that he was not flagged in time to stop his train.

THREE CANDIDATES ABOARD.

Bryan, Johnson, and Fairbanks Meet in the Dining Car.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 12.—Three Presidential possibilities were passengers on the Manhattan Limited on the Pennsylvania Railroad when that train reached the Union Station here from Chicago shortly after 1 o'clock.

They were Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, William J. Bryan, and Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota. Each man was in a different car and sound asleep when the train arrived here, the Vice President in the Rialto, Mr. Bryan in the Allegheny, and Gov. Johnson in the Alverton. All efforts to see either were unavailing, the train crew refusing to take cards to them or to permit newspaper men to board the train.

The three had been on the train since it left Chicago soon after noon, but, according to Pullman car employes, they did not meet until dinner time, when they met at one table and engaged in conversation. After dinner Gov. Johnson and Mr. Bryan, according to the same authority, engaged in close and earnest conversation until after 11 o'clock, when both retired.

Vice President Fairbanks was unfortunate in obtaining his berth. He did not apply until all reservations had been taken in the Washington cars and he was obliged to travel in the New York car to Harrisburg and then change at 7 o'clock in the morning.

HAS NEW MARRIAGE BELIEFS.

But University Professor Declines to Resign Because of Them.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 11.—W. Heath Bawden, Professor of Philosophy at the University of Cincinnati, announced today that he would refuse to accede to a request by President C. W. Dabney to tender his resignation because of his private views on marriage and public views on sociology.

Prof. Bawden said that he would fight against a forced retirement. He came to Cincinnati one year ago from Vassar, where he had been a member of the Faculty for six years. He admits that his radical views on marriage, combined with domestic problems in his own family, caused him to be dismissed from Vassar, but he maintains that he has never taught any of his private ideas to his students.

Prof. Bawden says that he believes in an ideal state, in which there will exist an association of the sexes based on comradeship. Bawden, who has been married twelve years, and his wife are declared to have lived apart for several years, even though residing in the same building, and the demand for Bawden's resignation is said to have followed Mrs. Bawden's statement of the conditions of her home life to President Dabney.

CHICAGO HEADQUARTERS OPEN

Republican Chairman New Getting Convention Plans in Order.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Active preparations for the holding of the Republican National Convention were commenced to-day when Chairman New of the National Committee opened headquarters here. Mr. New declared that the demand for tickets to the convention is unprecedented. The requests are still coming in at the rate of one hundred a day.

It is expected that Chairman New will soon issue a call for a meeting of the National Committee for the purpose of taking up the delegation contests. The possible date for this meeting is June 1. The meeting of the sub-committee is scheduled for Wednesday, when temporary officers of the convention will be named. Senator Beveridge, Leslie M. Shaw, and Senator Dolliver are the candidates whose names have been most prominently mentioned.

MUSIC DIRECTOR RIX GUILTY.

Fined Twenty Days' Pay for Neglect of Duty in Purchase of Pianos.

After being in session from 8 o'clock last night until 1:30 o'clock this morning, the Committee on Buildings of the Board of Education found Dr. Frank R. Rix, a Music Director, guilty of neglect of duty and fined him twenty days' pay. Several members of the committee were in favor of severer punishment for Dr. Rix, and the verdict was a compromise.

The trial of Dr. Rix is the second in connection with the piano scandal, and his case developed from his own testimony at the trial of Caleb W. Cameron, who was recently found guilty of neglect of duty and fined forty days' pay.

Dr. Rix is reported to have admitted that he had admitted then that he had a piano in one of the schools in Queens about which he had his doubts, but for which he signed a voucher upon which the Board of Education ordered payment.

H. S. VANDERBILT FINED $20.

Appeals Auto Speeding Case and Is Held in $50 Bail.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 11.—Harold S. Vanderbilt, a Harvard student, living at 25 Kirkland Street, Cambridge, was fined $20 in the Chelsea Court to-day for speeding his auto. He appealed and was held in $50 bail by Judge Bosson.

On the afternoon of May 5 young Vanderbilt took a party of friends to Chelsea to view the ruins, and Patrolman Albert, who made the arrest, says that the auto passed him going at the rate of 32 miles an hour. In court Vanderbilt said he did not know how fast he was going, as he did not have his speedometer on his auto at the time.

LINER IN COLLISION.

The Ottawa Reports All Safe After Striking the Thoretd.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 11.—The agents of the Dominion Line this evening received the following message from the Captain of the steamship Ottawa, sent through the signal station at Fame Point, 320 miles below Quebec:

"Have been in collision with the Norwegian steamer Thoretd. Considerably damaged. Forehold full of water. Passengers all well."

The Ottawa, which was formerly the Germanic of the White Star Line, sailed from here on Saturday morning with sixty-five cabin and a number of second-class passengers and a full cargo. It is supposed that the collision occurred about 150 miles below Fame Point.

No word has been received regarding the collier, which was inward bound from Sydney, and it is supposed that she was not seriously damaged.

OHIO TROOPS STILL NEEDED.

Although the Night Riders Have Not Done Damage Since Soldiers' Arrival.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 11.—Assistant Adjt. Gen. Worthington Kautzman returned to-day from the tobacco region and said that not a tobacco bed had been disturbed since the troops arrived.

"The situation," he said, "is a difficult one. I think that it will not be safe to withdraw the troops until after the tobacco plants have been transplanted from the beds to the fields."

FRENCH BIRTH RATE FALLS.

19,000 More Deaths in the Republic Last Year Than Births.

PARIS, May 11.—The vital statistics for 1907 show a further marked decrease in the birth rate for France, which, in a century, has fallen from 1,007,000 to 774,000 a year.

The reduction in the number of births last year was 33,000 as against an average decrease of 12,000 for the last seven years.

The deaths in France in 1907 totaled 793,000—19,000 more than the total of births.

WAITING ON SAGAN.

Mme. Gould Will Marry Him as Soon as He Changes His Religion.

ROME, May 11.—Mme. Anna Gould and her children, accompanied by Prince Helie de Sagan, left here this evening for Monte Carlo, whence within a week or two they expect to go to Paris.

It is stated that the marriage of the Prince and Mme. Gould will take place as soon as the Prince shall have embraced the Protestant faith. He declared again this evening that he was ready to turn Protestant so that a religious ceremony might be possible.

Both Mme. Gould and Prince Helie stated on leaving that they had had a most delightful visit in Rome. Mme. Gould, however, regretted the loss at Naples of a bracelet of great value, which the police were unable to find.

This is the first time in years that a first year student has won the honor. It was founded in 1887 by Mrs. Alfred Smith Barnes, wife of Gen. Barnes of Brooklyn.

George W. Nasmieth of this city receives the Browning prize for the best essay on Robert Browning. It was founded in 1902 by Prof. Hiram Corson, and consists of a $50 gold medal.

ARREST BROKER AT RECTOR'S.

Budd Hauser Charged with Larceny and Jumping His Bail.

Detective Flood last night arrested in Rector's restaurant and locked up at Police Headquarters Budd Hauser, a broker, who gave his address as 137 West Ninety-fifth Street. He is charged with grand larceny and jumping his bail. The complainant against Hauser on the larceny charge is Jerome Aberman of 215 West 116th Street.

He charges that on March 20, 1902, while in a saloon at Fortieth Street and Broadway, Hauser gave him "knock-out drops" and robbed him of $4,000 in bonds. Hauser was arrested on May 23 of the same year. He was held in $2,500 bail. The police say that he jumped his bail and went to Europe. Recently he returned and last night Flood recognized him among the diners at Rector's and arrested him.

GOV. HUGHES DELAYS FIGHT ON GAMBLING

Tells Special Session of the Legislature He Will Take Up Racing Bills Later.

WAITS ELECTION RESULT

Asks Enactment of Practically All Reforms Included in His Programme Defeated at Regular Session.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 11.—With the reading of a message from Gov. Hughes demanding the enactment of practically every one of his reforms which were defeated, or not acted upon at the regular session, the extraordinary session of the Legislature, called under a proclamation issued on April 23, began work here to-night.

To the surprise of many legislators, the Governor did not include in his message a recommendation for the enactment of the race-track reforms advocated by him and defeated at the regular session. The Governor, however, announced in his formal communication to the two branches of the Legislature, that he would submit to them recommendations for such enactment at a later date.

In withholding any recommendations for the enactment of the postponed race track reform, the Governor took into consideration the fact that the Senator who will be elected from the Niagara-Orleans District to-morrow—and whose vote may prove decisive in disposing of the race track bills—cannot, on account of red tape, take his seat in the Legislature until about two weeks from to-night. Under the law the county canvassers cannot meet to issue the necessary certificate of election until a week after the election has been held. Then the State Board of Canvassers must act on the certificate issued by the county canvassers. This board will not meet until Friday of next week.

The failure of the Governor to send in recommendations for the postponed race-track legislation will prevent the Legislature from taking any initiative in the matter, under the rules governing extraordinary sessions. This will obviate the possibility of any snap action forced by the opposition prior to the seating of the new Senator from the Forty-seventh District. It will also give the Governor time to conduct a further campaign throughout the various sections of the State represented by the eight Republican Senators who helped to defeat the Agnew-Hart bills at the regular session. It is known that this opportunity will be utilized by the Governor to the fullest extent possible.

It was reported here to-night that there is grave doubt of Senator Otto G. Foelker's recovery from his operation for appendicitis. Senator Foelker furnished one of the twenty-five votes which were cast for the race-track bills in the deadlock at the regular session. In the Senate, on motion of his Brooklyn colleague, Senator Travis, Foelker was excused indefinitely on account of illness.

Should he fail to return there would be a deadlock again, even though the Republican candidate, who is pledged to the race track reforms, should be elected from the Niagara-Orleans district, unless some Senator who voted against the bills should undergo a change of heart. Of this there is no indication at this time.

The Governor's Message.

While the abolition of the protection of public gambling at race tracks is not among the subjects recommended by Gov. Hughes for the consideration of the extraordinary session, at the conclusion of his message, read in both houses to-night, he says:

"I have called a special election in the Forty-seventh Senatorial District to fill the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of the Hon. Stanisiaus P. Franchot. This election is to be held on May 12, 1908. I make no further recommendation at this time, but it is my intention later to lay before you the important matter of abolishing the existing discriminations in favor of race track gambling, and of enacting appropriate legislation in accordance with the constitutional mandate for the prevention of this evil."

Eight other subjects are definitely recommended. Several of them are of more than ordinary importance from a political point of view. The subjects are as follows:

Extension of the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commissions so as to cover telegraph and telephone companies.

Amendment of the primary election law so as to provide for direct nominations and an official primary ballot.

The amendment of the election law so as to provide, wherever necessary, for a more complete identification of voters in connection with registrations.

Amendments to make "more adequate provision for the government of political parties and to furnish suitable protection against corrupt or arbitrary action."

Amendment of the labor law so as to provide a bureau of mercantile inspection in the Labor Department, and to transfer enforcement of the law relating to mercantile establishments from the local Health Boards to the Commissioner of Labor.

A reduction from $300,000 to $100,000 of the appropriation made at the regular session for the payments of rebates on surrender of liquor tax certificates; the reduced amount being sufficient in view of the change in the date of the excise fiscal year.

The appointment of special commissions to investigate stock speculation and the condition of the unemployed.

Wants Uniform Policy.

In recommending the bringing of telegraph and telephone companies under the Public Service Commissions, the Governor holds that the policy of the State with regard to public service corporations should be uniform. He declares that the plan of the commissions, enacted last year "has worked admirably"; should be made comprehensive; and now that the commissions have been organized and are in working order, it is proper that telephone and telegraph companies should be brought under their supervision. This may be made effective as early as Oct. 1, 1908. Action now will save, at all events, many months, and most probably a year's delay in establishing this important jurisdiction.

"Telephone and telegraph companies," says the Governor in part, "exercise important public franchises. The community should be protected against extortionate rates, and machinery should be provided for an adequate supervision of operations and service. Issues of securities should be made only under appropriate public scrutiny to prevent the evils of unwarrantable inflation. The State should protect its citizens from exploitation on the part of those who enjoy public privileges and undertake public service, while at the same time by provision for thorough investigation and the careful examination of facts by an administrative board suitably equipped for this purpose the evils of ill-considered and arbitrary action be fore the facts have been properly ascertained should be avoided."

Coming next to his recommendation of direct nominations, Gov. Hughes says:

Voters Should Choose Candidates.

"The organization of parties, not merely in theory, but in fact, should accord with the spirit of our institutions; it should be democratic and not oligarchic or despotic. The voters should be able, if they so desire, to choose their candidates, and elected representatives should recognize their accountability directly to their constituents. It is a perversion of the machinery designed to carry on a free government that those who are elected to office should regard themselves as the appointees of individuals, responsible to them for their acts, and dependent upon them for their continuance in political life.

"Electoral machinery should not be so devised as to enable individuals to thwart or ignore the will of the people by control of the instrumentalities of nominations. Party leadership, if skillful and unselfish, and party organization, if it be inspired in its effort by honorable devotion to party principles, cannot fail to command just recognition and esteem. But there is a prevalent tendency to use forms of association for purposes the reverse of those for which they have been designed; and to prevent such encroachments, constant vigilance is necessary.

"This is the more important in connection with the administration of party affairs, because of the absorption of our people in the activities of their business life and the readiness with which control is gained by small bodies of men who are anxious to secure and hold it. No party man, however zealous, can object to the utmost freedom on the part of the members of his party of expressing their will—particularly in the choice of those who are to represent them as candidates for office; while on the other hand, opportunity for such free expression constitutes an important safeguard against the misuse of delegated powers and promotes the effectiveness of organized effort which depends for its true success upon the confidence it inspires through its repreentative character."

The Governor admits that conditions may differ in different communities, but he contends that "whatever objection may be urged at this time to a provision of a mandatory character, there can be no valid objection to the incorporation in the primary election law of a provision which will permit the adoption of a plan for direct nominations in those communities where it is desired.

"A denial of the privilege of direct nominations to the enrolled voters of a district, where it is desired," he adds, "cannot be justified. It would imply a distrust of the voters, and of the very basis of our republican form of Government." He recommends at the same time "provision for additional protection against the commission of frauds in primary elections. With respect to this, provision for an official primary ballot is of the utmost importance."

To Prevent Convention Abuse.

In connection with his recommendation of legislation to prevent "abuses by State conventions and committees," the Governor reiterates what he said in his first annual message, in part as follows:

"The same policy which governs in the case of minor conventions and committees should apply to State organizations. Minorities should not be permitted to make themselves majorities by the arbitrary seizure of political organizations, nor through corruption or dishonest methods, and the courts should be vested with ample power to review in a summary manner all such abuses, and to restore to defrauded persons the political rights to which they are justly entitled. This is not a partisan matter, but it is one in which all who believe in fair play and honorable political methods are deeply interested."

Renewing his recommendation of an investigation of the unemployed, "and the means best adapted to secure a resumption of productive activity," the Governor says:

"That the situation with regard to the unemployed is exceedingly grave cannot be gainsaid. And I deem it important that there should be an intelligent and thorough inquiry and due consideration of the facts as ascertained."

There was a quorum present in both houses when the Legislature met this evening. In the Senate twelve members were not in their seats. Out of the 150 members of the Assembly eighty-one were present.

In both houses the message was read and ordered printed. At the session tomorrow it will be taken up and the various recommendations referred to the appropriate committees. Senator Page introduced two bills; one was his bill, defeated at the last session, giving the Public Service Commissions jurisdiction over telegraph and telephone companies. The other was a bill providing for the establishment of a bureau of mercantile inspection in the Labor Department.

In the Assembly Mr. Francis of New York introduced a bill providing for an official primary ballot, while Assemblyman Parker of Washington introduced the Page Labor bill.

Assemblyman Cuvillier created a diversion in the lower house by offering a resolution that the Legislature declare it a waste of time to take up the recommendations in the Governor's message, on the ground that they had already been acted upon at the regular session, and that the Legislature adjourn sine die forthwith.

"Ridiculous," said Majority Leader Merritt. "I thought the gentleman from New York ought to know better than any one what waste of time is. He has wasted more of the time of this House than any man I ever knew."

SPECIAL ELECTION TO-DAY.

Both Democratic and Republican Leaders Predict Victory.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., May 11.—On the eve of the special election called by Gov. Hughes to elect a successor to the late Senator Franchot to represent the Forty-seventh (Niagara-Orleans) Senatorial District at the extraordinary session of the Legislature, both Republacan and Democratic leaders expressed confidence to-night as to the result at the polls to-morrow.

Both William C. Wallace, nominated by the Republicans, and Henry McMahon, the candidate of the Democrats, are residents of Niagara Falls, the home of the late Senator Franchot.

The Republicans of the district have been divided by a factional strife. It is impossible to predict what success the supporters of Mr. Wallace will meet in getting out the Republican vote, particularly in the rural district.

The Association to Prevent Corrupt Practices at Elections will be represented at the Senatorial election in Niagara and Orleans Counties to-day. Representatives of the association are on the ground, and detectives from Buffalo will be present at the election districts.

SENATOR FOELKER WORSE.

Worries Himself Into Nervous State Because He Can't Attend Session.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 11.—Dr. Murphy of Staatsburg stated late to-night that Senator Otto G. Foelker of Brooklyn, who is suffering from appendicitis at the home of his son-in-law, Fred Bodenstein, where he was operated on Saturday, was not as well as he was this morning.

His temperature was 102 to-night, and Dr. Murphy said that his patient had worried himself into a highly nervous state because he cannot attend the extra session of the Legislature. When asked if he thought the Senator in danger of death, Dr. Murphy said: "I wouldn't like to say that, but he is an extremely sick man."

NO BETTING AT BENNING.

House Passes Anti-Gambling Bill—Track May Move Into Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—By a unanimous vote the House to-day passed the Anti-Gambling bill, which had already passed the Senate. It forbids in the broadest terms betting, gambling, poolselling, and bookmaking on any race or contest in the District of Columbia. The Democrats suspended their filibuster to expedite the passage of the bill.

An official of the Washington Jockey Club was at the Capitol this morning and said that the club had made no fight because they preferred to have their races where there was no opposition.

"We intend," he said, "to build a new track in Maryland, within five minutes' ride of the present track, and we will use the present track and housings for stables and practice. It is probable that in the new course we will have longer seasons than before."

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 11.—It is understood here that the Benning track is to be moved into Maryland. This would put it in Prince George's County, which adjoins the District of Columbia. The Maryland law limits the time for racing in any one county, but an act applying to Prince George's and passed some years ago would permit racing for an indefinite period.

If the racing is not carried to extremes, there will probably be no objection made. The county fairs would probably protect the race meetings, as these are popular, and if betting is prohibited, it would probably put an end to the trotting races at these fairs.

METHODISTS PRAISE HUGHES.

Conference Indorses His Stand Against Race-Track Gambling.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 11.—The attitude of Gov. Hughes of New York on the race track question was indorsed, and his act in calling the Legislature into special session to consider and pass laws for the abolition of betting at the tracks was approved in a resolution adopted unanimously by the Methodist Episcopal Conference to-day.

A resolution looking to the union of the Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant Churches also received the unanimous vote of the delegates. It invites the Methodist Protestant Church to unite with the Methodist Episcopal body, and requests the Board of Bishops to appoint a fraternal deputation to convey the invitation together with the most cordial greetings of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the General Conference of the Methodist Protestants about to convene at Pittsburg. Another resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Temperance, requested the political parties to nominate for President no man "who is not in harmony with the movement to divorce this Nation from the crime of liquor selling," and declared that no candidate for the office of President who is not himself a total abstainer and in harmony with the movement for the suppression of the traffic should receive the support of Christian citizens.

Wednesday, May 20, was set as the date for taking up the question of the election of new Bishops and discussing the question of Bishops' assignments.

JAPANESE HAVE A BUSY DAY.

Distinguished Orientals Visit Wall Street and Meet Financiers.

Baron Yoshira Sakatani, ex-Minister of Finance of Japan, and his party of prominent compatriots who are now at the Holland House for a brief stay in New York on their trip around the world, spent much of yesterday receiving and returning calls from leading New York financiers. The Baron's first caller was Jacob H. Schiff, who spent an hour with the noted foreigner. It was said that business was not discussed and that the Baron's visit to New York was one of pleasure and has nothing to do with the forthcoming repayment by Japan of the bond issue to the amount of $50,000,000 due on July 1.

Later in the day the Baron returned the call of Mr. Schiff and also visited other financial houses in the Wall Street district. A part of the day was also given over to sightseeing. The party visited Grant's tomb. They went to Washington late in the afternoon.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES PROSPERITY CRUSADE

Tells the New Association He Will Help in Effort to Re-establish Good Times.

HEARS SOCIETY'S AIMS

Chairman Simmons Tells President Time Has Come to Halt Experimental Regulative Legislation.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—A committee from the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis called on President Roosevelt to-day to urge his aid in furthering their plans for encouraging the return of prosperity throughout the country. The committee found the President cordial in his treatment and frank in his expression of willingness to aid them in every way possible.

A short speech was made by E. C. Simmons, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the association, which was responded to by the President. Other members of the committee were F. J. Wade, Edward Devoy, F. B. Wiberg, J. E. Smith, W. K. Bixby, Murray Carleton, George A. Meyer, and Jackson Johnson.

Mr. Simmons's speech was as follows:

Chairman Simmons's Speech.

"The National Prosperity Association has been formed to improve business conditions. It has in view no backward step from reforms which have been instituted. It raises no question as to the wisdom of laws which have been placed upon the National statute books. It applauds the correction of evils in business methods.

"After ten years of great prosperity the body commercial entered upon a period of depression and stagnation. The signs that the period is passing begin to multiply. There is promise of bountiful crops. The unemployed are eager for work. Relations between capital and labor are not strained. The financial stringency has passed. Capital is anxious for safe investment.

"With such conditions prosperity waits only on confidence. We believe this is an opportune time for business men with honorable ideals to get together. We believe the disposition of business interests is in the right direction and should receive encouragement.

"Therefore, Mr. President, the National Prosperity Association has been formed, designed in the first place to promote confidence among our business men, and, in the second, through co-operation with you, to impress that confidence upon all our own people and the world at large. The association will facilitate interchange of opinion among the 100,000 nonpartisan business organizations of the country. Business has suffered too much already from demagogic agitation; therefore the association will seek relief from continued agitation by professional agitators. It will depreciate the unworthy spirit which arrays class against class. It will seek that unity of brotherhood which you have proclaimed. It will insist that the American business men's standards are high; that his methods are clean. It will proclaim what you have proclaimed, that the bulk of our business is honestly done.

"It will point out that the disturbance of public confidence was not due to the enactment of reform legislation or to the punishment of specific wrong in methods, but to gross violations of law by some corporations and grafting by some public offlcals and to a defective currency system. Upon the heels of the insurance exposures came the earthquake at San Francisco, with the resultant damage, amounting to several hundred million of dollars, impoverishing citizens as well as insurance companies. Then came the discovery of bribery and grafting in some of our large cities, the manipulation of railroad assets, and prosecution of corporations for violations of the laws of State and Nation. These revelations naturally shook confidence. Reforms were imperative. You, Mr. President, effected them, and to-day the country realizes the value and potency of the remedy.

Indebted to Roosevelt.

"The association recognizes the debt the business interests, indeed the whole country, owes you for what you have done. It feels now that the time has come to take stock, to call a halt upon radical, hasty, and experimental legislation, designed to regulate industry. If the law officers have knowledge of violations of statutes let prosecutions proceed vigorously and expeditiously before Grand Juries and in courts. The dishonest corporation, the dishonest railroad management, should be punished. But the honest corporation, the honest railroad management, should be protected, and this the association relies upon you to provide.

"Upon railroads, particularly, public attention has been focused. No other interests have suffered so severely as they have during the past six months. Less of gain is apparent with the railroads than with other kinds of business. Shrinkage of values has been very great. The Hepburn law, for which you are responsible, has introduced a higher standard of administration, but there have been unwise State enactments and agitation for harsh Federal laws harmful to the properties from the standpoint of the operator and employe and the investor.

"A National political campaign is opening. Platforms are to be adopted. The National Prosperity Association will ask for fair-minded consideration of business issues by both parties. But the association does not believe that prosperity depends upon politics. It is convinced that business may revive; that the unemployed may find work; that the normal volume of trade may be reached without waiting for the November elections. To that end the association will address itself.

"In seeking your support of the work of the association, Mr. President, we are inspired by the view that your co-operation will go far to aid in the restoration of hopefulness, of confidence, and of right thinking in our land."

The President's Response.

The President responded as follows:

"I am in hearty sympathy with the avowed object of the National Prosperity Association. It is excellent. We have gone far in uprooting abuses which threaten our National life. Taken as a whole, the standard of honesty in our business life has been high, and to-day the standard is, I believe, beyond what it has even been, and this largely because we have made determined war on the abuses that lowered it.

"As you have said, the depression and stagnation from which our country is now happily beginning to recover were not caused by reform legislation, but by the revelation of shocking conditions in certain of our corporations, by reckless operations in high finance, by calamity, and by certain striking, though, I believe, exceptional, instances of business and civic dishonesty. Of course, all good men must agree with you in your condemnation of unwise agitation. The apathetic acceptance of abuses in our governmental and business administrations is more dangerous than the demagogic appeals of professional agitators to class hatreds.

"Our National conscience, I firmly believe, has been awakened. We will not and cannot go back to the conditions which tolerated wrongdoing. Neither can we afford to be led astray by those who would embark us in a visionary and twisted crusade against all corporations, all business methods. We should address ourselves to the faithful and honest observance of the laws of civic righteousness. The welfare of all of us can best be obtained by striving for a policy which will promote the welfare of each of us. We must all co-operate in order that benefit may be derived by the entire Nation.

Laws Must Be Vitalized.

"Good laws make for good government; but laws are of no avail unless vitalized by the people who made them. Our recent legislation has been good, and it is to the interest of the entire country, and especially of the business interests, that it should be enforced. Such further regulatory legislation as is required is merely a building upon the broad foundations that have been laid. It conceals no menace to business, any more than that legislation which has already been enacted.

"There is no need for agitation concerning it; there is no excuse for demagogic excitement about it. It is as much our duty to conserve the real rights of property as it is to conserve the real rights of labor. This we have done in the past, and this we ought to do, and will do in the future.

"The country realizes that confidence is not a matter of law. It is an intangible something which exists in the relations of men. These relations have been strengthened in our own country by the economic reforms that have been instituted. Therefore, we are more powerful to-day than we have ever been. So far as the present Administration is concerned, it will continue unchanged the policy of safeguarding the rights of all and of embracing every possible and legitimate means to advance the welfare and prosperity of our country.

Business Must Be Honest.

"Let there be no misunderstanding about this. The business and commercial interests of this country to be prosperous in any enduring sense must be administered honestly. With occasional exceptions they have been and are now so administered. As you have well said, wherever there is evidence of dishonesty, it must be pursued relentlessly and punished, but having thus moved forward to a high plane of business integrity, and on that plane built wisely, let no man seize the moment when we have as a Nation pilloried the real malefactors to say that all American business men, or even any considerable number of them, are malefactors. I welcome your work and shall be glad to co-operate with you in any effort to establish prosperity on right and honest lines."

FOOD

CHANGE IN FOOD

Works Wonders in Health.

It is worth knowing that a change in food can cure dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts food has cured me of indigestion.

"I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed instructions, and now I am entirely well.

"The whole family like Grape-Nuts, we use four packages a week. You are welcome to use this testimonial as you see fit."

The reason this lady was helped by the use of Grape-Nuts food is that it is predigested by natural processes and therefore does not tax the stomach as the food she had been using; it also contains the elements required for building up the nervous system. If that part of the human body is in perfect working order, there can be no dyspepsia, for nervous energy represents the steam that drives the engine.

When the nervous system is run down the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PROSPERITY BOOMERS HERE.

Will Lay Their Optimistic Plans Before the Chamber of Commerce.

The St. Louis delegation of the National Prosperity Association, after the interview with President Roosevelt, came to New York and put up at the Waldorf-Astoria. They took the hotel by storm, and before retiring for the night had gained many New York adherents to their cause. They will meet the New York Chamber of Commerce at noon and will lay before the members of its committee the work of the association in the West.

F. J. Wade, who is President of the Mercantile Trust Company of St. Louis, in outlining the objects of the association to THE TIMES, said:

"We are in the producing section of the United States. We never had such bountiful crops as last year, nor prospects so good as this year. Our agricultural resources were never so good as they are now. There is no reason why the business prosperity attained before the panic came should not be at once resumed. We came East to lay our work before the President, and also for the purpose of meeting a committee of the Chamber of Commerce here to explain to them our object. We hope that as a result they will join us in the general movement."

Mr. Wade, when asked what methods the association purposed to use, to consummate its objects, said that the principal one was to remove the fear which is at present holding back capital.

After the meeting with the Chamber of Commerce to-day the delegation will return to St. Louis.

TO GIVE THE IDLE WORK.

Prosperity Association Assured of Resumption from Factory Executives.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 11.—Idle employes will be recalled to work and factories and shops will be reopened in all parts of the country as a result of the "Give us a rest and sunshine" campaign conducted by the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis. The officers of the organization have been negotiating with the executive officials of receivers and large corporations for a general resumption of activity, and they were advised to-day that their requests will be granted.

The proposition which the association has submitted to transportation and industrial concerns is to apply every increase in business, however slight, to the wage account. By this arrangement employes will be brought to work week after week. It is expected that several large receivers and industries will issue notice in a day or two to enlarge and accelerate operations.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 11.—The ranks of Pittsburg's army of unemployed were depleted to-day to the extent of several thousand men through the resumption of some plants that have been idle and through increases of the working forces of others.

CLEVELAND STILL IMPROVING.

Wife Visits Children at Princeton, but Returns to Lakewood.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 11.—Mr. Cleveland continues to improve, according to reports from the Lakewood Hotel. His condition was such to-day that Mrs. Cleveland left him early this morning and went to Princeton to see the children. She returned this evening, however, after being away about twelve hours.

No date has yet been set for Mr. Cleveland to leave Lakewood.

LOUISIANA FOR TAFT.

Negro Among the Delegates Chosen at State Convention.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—With instructions to vote for Secretary Taft for Presidential nominee, the Republican State Convention to-day elected the following delegates at large to the National Convention: Pearl Wight, New Orleans; H. C. Warmouth, Lawrence; Henry McCall, Donaldsville; A. B. Kennedy, (negro,) New Orleans.

There was a sharp contest as to whether a negro should be named among the delegates. Henry N. Pharr, late defeated candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, told the convention that throughout his campaign he had made pledges that no negroes should be sent by the party to the National Convention, and he declared that, either by silence or by applause, when he made these pledges, the party leaders had committed themselves likewise.

Ex-Gov. Warmoth, who said he spoke for the party leaders referred to by Pharr, declared that the latter's campaign pledges to make the Republican Party in Louisiana exclusively a white man's party were not authorized by the party leaders. On a test vote the anti-negro faction lost, 49 to 462. Pharr and his followers then withdrew from the convention.

STAMPEDE TO TAFT TO BLOCK ROOSEVELT

Utah and Texas Demands for President Have Frightened the Leaders.

WORKING TO GET CRANE

Other New England Senators Said to be Willing to Insure Secretary's Nomination on First Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The allied opposition to Secretary Taft is on the verge of collapse. For some time Senators Aldrich and Hale have been in the Taft camp, and recently they have been working hard to get Senator W. Murray Crane, the field marshal of the allies, to join them. It is reported to-night that Senator Crane has met these overtures in a manner which leads to the belief that he will eventually come over. The combination in that event will mean the solid vote of New England for Taft on the first ballot and end the possibility for further question as to the Secretary's nomination.

The Senators have been shaken up by the recent talk of a stampede for Roosevelt. There is probably only one Republican in the country for whom they would not rather vote than Taft; that one is Roosevelt, and the lingering possibility that the convention might be stampeded for the President has convinced the Senators that their best move is to insure the nomination of Taft on the first ballot.

This possibility has been emphasized for them in the last few days by the resolutions adopted at the Utah convention for the election of delegates to Chicago last week and by the result of the primaries in California. The Taft strength in New England has been growing steadily, and has been well recognized by the Senators from those States who have continued their opposition. When Senator Crane decides to vote for Taft that means that all opposition in New England will cease, and Taft will have the solid eighty-two votes from those States.

In the entire group of dominant Senators whom the President has classified as reactionaries there is not one who personally or politically prefers Taft to Knox or Cannon or Fairbanks. But every one of them prefers Taft to Roosevelt. For weeks past there have been rumors that Aldrich eventually would swing to Taft. The Rhode Island delegation is uninstructed and will be absolutely subservient to the wishes of Aldrich. The conversion of Hale was a tedious process, but it became apparent that Maine would send a Taft delegation to Chicago. His colleague, Senator Frye, was openly for Taft.

But it was not until the papers began to tell of the preference expressed for Roosevelt in Texas, Utah, and California, that Aldrich and Hale took off their coats. For three days nobody in Washington, not even excepting Hitchcock, who works fourteen hours a day, and can always be found on duty at midnight, has been so active in behalf of Taft as Aldrich and Hale. A stampede to Roosevelt apparently was threatened, and they began to organize to prevent it.

The President knew of their efforts and he secretly applauded. Their activity in behalf of Taft is what he had hoped for, and indeed planned for. The President is intensely practical as he himself admits. He did not care what influences caused the reactionaries to get behind Taft, just so they helped to give him the nomination. He doesn't care how a stampede is prevented, just so it is prevented.

Under the circumstances a stampede which will nominate Roosevelt now is out of the question. It is apparent that for every vote which leaves Taft for Roosevelt two will leave the allies for Taft. Taft will have more than 400 sure votes, which are his by binding instructions. Should a stampede be attempted there are enough votes which can be controlled by the Crane-Aldrich-Hale group to throw to Taft and make his nomination on the first ballot certain.

Senator Knox, it is said, does not subscribe to the idea that Taft's nomination is inevitable. He still entertains the hope of himself being the nominee. Speaker Cannon is holding out, but rather than see Roosevelt nominated he would throw the votes of the Illinois delegation to Taft, for if there is one person in the wide world whom Uncle Joe does not want in the Presidential chair it is Theodore Roosevelt.

From all sides in the camp of the allies to-night came denials of the reports that Senator Crane had joined the new combination with Aldrich, Hale, and Allison. Crane himself said there was no foundation for the story, and representatives of Knox and Cannon made similar denials. The indications are, however, that the publication of the report is a little premature from the Crane camp.

DIED FOLLOWING ARREST.

Salesman, Held for Intoxication, Collapsed in Court Prison.

Frederick W. Caddigan, a salesman, of 105 or 110 State Street, Boston, died last night in Bellevue Hospital as a result of injuries supposed to have been received while under detention in the Jefferson Market Court Prison. Dr. Foley of Bellevue, who responded to a hurry call from the prison shortly after 8 o'clock, found Caddigan suffering from a broken nose, fractured ribs, internal injuries, and acute alcoholism. He hurried him to the hospital, but Caddigan never recovered consciousness and died just after 11 o'clock.

At the prison last night, Peter A. Mallon, the keeper, knew nothing whatever of the matter until informed of it by THE TIMES reporter. His assistant, John O'Connor, said he heard shouts coming from the "ten day pen" in which Caddigan was confined with other prisoners. Going there, he discovered the man lying on his face on the floor, evidently having fallen off the wooden bench which serves as a bench and bed.

Two other prisoners, John Greel and George Groves, told of hearing Caddigan groan all day and complain of feeling ill. He said he had bad pains in the stomach. It was about 7:30 o'clock last night, they said, when Caddigan, who had been sitting on the bench with his legs hanging down, suddenly collapsed, as if seized with a fit, and fell to the floor. They shouted loudly, and O'Connor came.

The court record shows that Caddigan was 35 years old, married, and had been arrested yesterday morning at 11:15 in West Twenty-seventh Street, for intoxication. Magistrate Steinert held him in $100 bail for further examination.

WOMAN RUN OVER BY A CAR.

Knocked by One in Front of Another—Not Expected to Live.

A woman supposed to be a Mrs. Carey of 428 East 120th Street was knocked down and run over early this morning by a car at Seventh Avenue and 120th Street. Both her legs were terribly crushed and she was taken to the Harlem Hospital, where it is believed she will die. Edward Loughrey, the motorman of the car, was arrested.

The woman, who is about 40 years old, was crossing the street when she got in the track of a north-bound car. It struck her and tossed her across the south-bound track. The second time she fell in front of a car and the wheels passed over her legs. She was well dressed and wore several diamond rings.

TAMMANY MEETS TO-NIGHT.

Will Discuss Moving of the Hall and July 4 Orators.

There is likely to be a good deal of informal discussion to-night at the 119th annual meeting of Tammany Hall upon a proposition to move the actual hall further uptown. The Tiger has had its lair in Fourteenth Street for more than forty-one years, having moved up from the corner of Frankfort Street and Park Row in 1867, but recently there has been a feeling that Tammany might be more conveniently situated. Property owners in the Fourteenth Street section are willing to do all they can to facilitate the removal of the hall. The block between Irving Place and Third Avenue on the north side of the street is entirely taken up by Tammany Hall, Tony Pastor's Theatre, and the Academy of Music. None of these is a modern building, and it is believed that if they were improved the business outlook for the stores opposite to them would be considerably brightened.

If Tammany does decide to move it is not likely to settle down in any street further south than Columbus Circle. But as yet no particular site is in prospect, and it will probably take two or three years to induce the older members of the organization to make up their minds to quit the building where so much history has been made.

Another matter which is going to cause a good deal of discussion is the programme for the Fourth of July celebrations. With the Democratic National Convention only three days after, all the local leaders will be on their way to Denver or already there, and it will be no easy matter to find speakers of prominence for the talks. As Charles F. Murphy and State Chairman Conners are by no means inclined to support William Jennings Bryan, great care will have to be taken to obtain orators who will not run contrary to their policy. Four years ago the same difficulty occurred, and ex-Gov. Hogg of Texas was pressed into Tammany's service. He enlivened the proceedings by attempting to launch a Bryan boom in New York, and the sensation caused thereby is not yet forgotten by Tammany.

MAYOR VETOES TWO BILLS.

He Kills the Vacation and Assignment of Firemen Measures.

Mayor McClellan vetoed two legislative bills yesterday. The first dealt with the vacations of city employes and the second permitted the detail of a squad of not more than thirty first-grade firemen to the Bureau of Combustibles.

With regard to the first the Mayor expressed his general sympathy with the measure, but said he could not pass it in its present form. He founded his objections upon the prohibition of all vacations in October and November and the limitation of leaves of absence to one month.

The Mayor objected to the bill regarding the Bureau of Combustibles, as it permits the promotion of the firemen assigned to the bureau without examination to the rank of assistant foreman. He said this might work injustice upon the members of the department, who were forced to go through the regular routine.

Hughes had designated the following named organizations to participate in the joint army and National Guard manoeuvres to be held at Pine Plains, on the Black River, Jefferson County, June 15 to June 25: Squadron A and First Battery of New York City; Squadron C and Twenty-third Regiment of Brooklyn; Troop B of Albany and Troop D of Syracuse. The Governor has detailed the Twelfth and Sixty-ninth Regiments of New York to camp service during the Summer.

CAN'T ARREST CHANLER HERE.

U. S. Court of Appeals Grants Order Giving Him Safe Conduct.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday in a decision written by Judge Noyes grants the protection of the court to John Armstrong Chanler, brother of Lieut. Gov. Chanler, and former husband of Amelie Rives, now the Princess Troubetzkoi, while he comes into this State to testify in an action he has brought in the Federal courts against Thomas J. Sherman, the guardian of his $1,000,000 estate, to recover $250,000.

Chanler was declared insane in this State in 1897 and confined in Bloomingdale Asylum. In 1900 he escaped and went to Virginia. Chanler settled in Albemarle County, Va., and two years later the courts of that State declared he was sane. Chanler, in 1904, brought an action against Sherman in this State asking for $250,000 damages, alleging that the guardian had converted to his own use property to that amount.

YALE MAN HELD UNDER BAIL.

Morris A. Yagensdorf Brought Here on a Bench Warrant.

For some reason which no one in the Criminal Court Building yesterday could give Morris A. Yagensdorf, a nineteen-year-old law student at Yale, who a few weeks ago was freed from a charge brought by the parents of Grace L. Weeks, 16 years old, of 447 East 122d Street, by marrying her, was rearrested by Detective Russo in New Haven yesterday on a bench warrant issued by Judge Mulqueen.

As Judge Mulqueen was out of town, he was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky, who refused to hear any complaint and released him on a bond of $1,000 guaranteeing his appearance when Judge Mulqueen returns.

GUNNESS VICTIMS KILLED BY CHLORAL

Police Have Knives That Mutilated Bodies, and Know Where Poison Was Bought.

LAMPHERE ACCUSES WIDOW

Tells Minister Mrs. Gunness Planned His Murder—Helgelein's Hand, Clasping Hair, Shows the Death Struggle.

Special to The New York Times.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 11.—A complete solution of the mysteries of the Gunness farm is expected within forty-eight hours. A final step will be taken either to-morrow or the next day by the men who have brought the investigation of horrors to its culmination, and there is satisfaction expressed in the attitude of every man upon whose shoulders rested the responsibility for placing the culpability behind at least fourteen deaths.

Four of these are crossed from the list by absolute certainty that Ray Lamphere, the prisoner in the County Jail, set fire to the home of Mrs. Bella Gunness on the morning of April 28 and caused the deaths of the widow and her three children. For this he is liable under the peculiar provisions of the Indiana State laws to conviction for murder in the first degree as well as for arson. Indictments against him upon both these charges will be asked of the Grand Jury, which met in its first session to-day, but will not reach his case before Wednesday.

The Manner of Death.

That the victims came to their deaths through the use of poison, the administration of chloral, has been proven. The places at which the drug was purchased during the last eight years has been found. That the bodies then were dismembered, either in a "chamber of horrors" on the second floor of the Gunness home or in the basement, has been shown to the satisfaction of the investigators. Two knives, one a six-inch dagger and the other a needle-pointed, double razor-edged surgeon's knife, are in their hands.

That the big, stolid Norwegian woman enticed some of them into her lair by the bait of matrimonial advertisements and there had an active hand in killing them and disposing of their bodies is established without question by those expected to answer the riddle.

The one remaining question, whether she had assistance in her crimes, is to be met by the action that is expected almost hourly.

Facts Obtained from Lamphere.

The arrival at this point has been preceded by a hunt for minutia only rumors of which have been given to the public. Here and there bits of evidence have become known, but the great array of facts, it is said, was obtained from statements made by Ray Lamphere, the former hired man who blackmailed the Gunness woman through the possession of knowledge concerning her dark secrets.

He has not been "sweated" at any time. No attempt at the "third degree" has been made, but it is from his utterance that the chain of testimony has been forged.

The chief agent in obtaining the confidence of the prisoner has been a minister—the Rev. E. A. Schell, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

Ever since the first day of the prisoner's incarceration the clergyman has been a visitor at his cell. For hours at a time he has been locked in with the man who might carry the secret with him to the gallows. Upon the report of the clergyman the investigators have builded their case. All that Lamphere told him has not been revealed, but enough of his admissions to give the framework upon which the decision has been reached became public to-day.

The man has been cautioned by his legal counsel to avoid giving any information concerning his knowledge of his actions upon the night of the disappearance of Andrew Helgelein, the last victim of the alleged murderess; his observations upon that and later occasions, and his actions upon the night of the fire which cost the lives of the woman and her three children.

Either a Witness or Participant.

In spite of these warnings, the accused man has made admissions that have led to the conviction that he either was a witness or an active participant in the putting away of Andrew Helgelein. According to his statements, shortly before June 27, 1907, Mrs. Gunness stopped him on the street and asked him if he could go to her farm and do some carpentering. He accepted her offer, and on that date began his work repairing a floor in the house.

It was not long before she made to him a proposal of marriage. She urged that this step be taken as soon as possible, but that it must be preceded by his having his life insured. She pointed out that under the State law none but a relative may be the beneficiary of an insurance policy.

About Jan. 4 he discovered that Helgelein had come to the house. One afternoon, when he had been ordered by Mrs. Gunness to build a fire in the sitting room stove, he was startled by the appearance of a stranger who came down the stairs.

This was Helgelein, he learned later, for at that time Mrs. Gunness returned to find the two men engaged in questioning each other as to his identity, and in a rage ordered Lamphere to go to the barn, "where he belonged." The jealousy which sprang up in the heart of Lamphere led him to watch the woman and her new fiancé closely. He listened at windows and doors, and on one of these instances heard Mrs. Gunness tell Helgelein that she was "sick of having Lamphere around."

"I am going to give him a dose of chloral," she said. "How much will I give him to kill him?"

"I can't tell," replied Helgelein. "He's got a dog. Why don't you try it on the dog?"

Thoroughly frightened, Lamphere went to a friend in Laporte and told him what he had heard. He was advised to "pack his kit and clear out," but returned to the farm. A few days later his dog disappeared, and he revisited his confidant, whom he advised that, in case of his sudden death, an autopsy should be held.

On Jan. 14, learning that Mrs. Gunness had gone into Laporte with Helgelein, and that the latter had drawn from the bank nearly $2,000, he disobeyed the widow's instructions when she sent him to Michigan City with orders to stay away all night.

In contradiction of his first story that he did not reach Laporte until 11 o'clock, he has admitted under pressure of the testimony of two witnesses that he returned to the farm at 9 o'clock.

Bored a Hole Through Floor.

He declared that when he reached the barnyard he saw the widow and her sweetheart in a distant corner of the grounds walking about with a lantern. While they were out of the house he entered the basement and with an auger bored a hole through the sitting room floor, through which he might catch bits of conversation that would be valuable to him.

Then he declared, becoming seized with fright at the thought that they were selecting a place for his grave, he bolted into Laporte and remained for the rest of the night.

This part of his statement, the State holds, is merely his effort to establish an alibi at the time of Helgelein's death.

An effort will be made to prove that he had a more active hand than he admits, at least assisting in the burial of bodies.

Going beyond this point Lamphere has asserted that after he was told by Mrs. Gunness that Helgelein had gone to Norway, and had received the intimation that his name was not to be mentioned, he listened at his hole through the floor in the sitting room, and at least upon two occasions heard men in the room above.

He declares that the visitors came at night, made their way to a side door, and were admitted to the sitting room. One of these went away the same night, and the other remained in the house from one night until the next, when he left in the early morning.

Hair in Helgelein's Clenched Hand.

Dr. J. H. William Meyer sent to the Coroner his findings resulting from the autopsies on the bodies supposed to be those of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., and Jennie Olsen, the foster daughter of Mrs. Gunness, who disappeared in 1906. Dr. Meyer reported that a mass of hair had been found in the clenched fist of Helgelein, and that the fingers grasping it had been severed.

Dr. Meyer's report on the bodies of Helgelein and Miss Olsen declared that both had met unnatural deaths. In the case of the young woman the condition of the body precluded any possibility of determining the manner in which she was murdered. Decay, caused largely by lime, had destroyed the tissues so that the organs are scarcely susceptible to chemical analysis, and there is not enough flesh left to show evidence of wounds. The crumbling skull revealed none.

Helgelein's body had been in the ground only a few months at most, and it gave evidence of a death struggle. The clenched hand, which contained hair, had been mutilated and the other hand had been severed at the wrist. Of this body, the official report says:

"From the findings, it is evident that the man died an unnatural death, but at whose hands, or how, cannot be determined by the examination so far. The hair in the hand is likely from the head of his murderer, or the stomach may show what poison, if any, killed him. The hair is short and of a reddish brown tinge."

Ralph N. Smith, the prosecuting attorney, denies an interview credited to him in which he is asserted to have said that a gold band ring in the possession of the prosecution was found on a finger of the left hand of the charred body said to be that of Mrs. Gunness.

PISTOLS ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Emil Greening Believes Mrs. Gunness Killed Three Persons a Month.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 11.—Emil C. Greening says he knows the history of Mrs. Gunness and believes that she is now in hiding in Chicago, where she is known to have had many friends.

"I believe that the Gunness house claimed three victims a month during the time that I was there, but I had no knowledge of any of this business," said Greening.

"Mrs. Gunness always kept whisky, and it might be that she used poison in this. I never heard a shot fired, although there were lots of times that a gun could have been fired and I would not have heard it. There were pistols all over the place, and at least a dozen watches and numerous pocketbooks scattered about."

Gunness Murders Drive Man to Suicide

WARSAW, Ind., May 11.—While temporarily deranged from reading the newspaper accounts of the Gunness murders, Jacob Pouch, aged 70 years, committed suicide last night.

TAXICAB RAN WOMAN DOWN.

She Was Removed to Roosevelt Hospital with Severe Injuries.

While waiting for a car at Eighth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Viola Moore of 404 West Fifty-seventh Street was run down by a taxicab and severely injured. It is feared her skull was fractured. She told the police afterward that three men, who picked her up, robbed her of $79 which she said she had pinned in the bosom of her dress.

John Newman, 21 years old, of 204 West 143d Street, driver of the taxicab, was arrested. He said he was trying to avoid a collision with a sightseeing car and turned out of the way, not seeing Mrs. Moore standing near the car tracks. The woman was removed to Roosevelt Hospital, where it was said she would probably recover.

$36,000,000 OF WASTE ON THIRD AV. SYSTEM

Money Paid in for Bonds, Receiver Says, but Not Expended on the Line.

COST $200,000 TO TRACE IT

Then Could Not Be Recovered—Only "Stage Money" for Metropolitan's Debts—Rap at Public Utilities Board.

Receiver Frederick W. Whitridge of the Third Avenue Railroad, in a report to the bondholders of that company, made public yesterday, says that it will cost about $4,000,000 to pay for necessary repairs and for improvements which he thinks ought to be provided for immediately. He says he has not found evidence that all the proceeds of the company's bonds were expended on the property. Incidentally, he places a very low estimate on the work so far accomplished by the Public Service Commission.

The proceeds of the Third Avenue's bond sale, the receiver says he was informed by the bankers, were paid to the company in three checks, one for $17,000,000, drawn on the National City Bank; one for $17,564,444.44 on the National Bank of Commerce, and one for $1,943,000. "There is, in my judgment," says the receiver, "no evidence on earth or under the earth of the expenditure of any such sum of money upon the Third Avenue system." He says, however, that it would cost $200,000 to trace the expenditure of all this money, and that after this was done there would be no certainty that any of the money could be recovered for the bondholders.

Of the condition of the company when he took charge, the receiver says that it had no offices and no supplies; that its shops had been neglected for years, and that the tracks and cars were in very bad shape, the power house alone being in good condition. Of the 567 cars turned over to him there was only one which did not need immediately some repairs.

Included in the $4,056,000 which the receiver estimates ought to be spent upon the property are $300,000 for repair of cars, $436,000 for repair of tracks, $300,000 for new cars already ordered, and $1,500,000 for additional rolling stock which the receiver thinks necessary. The amount also includes over $1,300,000 for new construction, including several miles of railway on the Bronx and Pelham Parkway lines.

The receiver announces that he proposes to ask the court for permission to issue $2,500,000 receivers' certificates to cover part of these proposed expenditures. The unpaid franchise taxes due by the Third Avenue system amount on their face, the receiver states, to $1,600,000. The company paid only the taxes for the first year the special franchise tax was in effect, and the tax for the last eight years is still in litigation.

The receiver recommends that all the claims against the Metropolitan and New York City Railway companies be abandoned upon condition that there be returned to the Third Avenue the amount collected by the Metropolitan after the last payment on account of its lease, less the cost of operating the Third Avenue system. He says judgments for considerable amounts could probably be entered, but, he adds, that such judgments could not be collected from the Metropolitan, and that they would represent only "stage money."

Of the Public Service Commission Receiver Whitridge says that with the exception of one trifling suggestion the Commission has proposed nothing novel, has hastened nothing that the receiver was trying to do, and has accomplished nothing at all except to give the receiver a little more trouble, of which, Mr. Whitridge says, "we already have a sufficiency."

CROKER AT FIRE INQUIRY.

Denies That He Prepared Hose Specifications Until Recently.

The relations of Chief Croker and Deputy Water Commissioner Loughman, who was at one time President of the Windsor Fire Hose Company, took up much of the time of Commissioners of Accounts Mitchel and Gallaher in their examination into the affairs of the Fire Department yesterday. Chief Croker denied that he had had anything to do with the preparation of hose specifications until recently, or that Mr. Loughman ever had approached him concerning the matter. He could not say why Mr. Loughman had written to him about the result of certain tests of hose.

When Mr. Loughman was called to the stand, he declared that the only interest the Chief took in his sales of hose was in a friendly manner, but he thought that this friendship might have assisted him to make his sales in a general manner.

He admitted that he had induced Chief Croker to change the test of the hose from the old hydraulic pump to a fire engine test, on the ground that the latter kept the pressure more even and was therefore fairer.

The hearing was adjourned until this morning.

NEW HAVEN ROAD'S DEFICIT.

Largest Since 1893—Operating Expense Was Heavily Cut.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 11.—The largest quarterly deficit the New Haven Road has suffered since the industrial depression of 1893 was reported to-night for the three months covering January, February, and March. The total shortage was $668,837, against a surplus of $349,109 for the same months in 1907.

It will be recalled that the road failed to earn its dividend for the last quarter, although the usual 2 per cent. return was declared. The excessive amount of the deficit was not, however, generally believed possible till announced to-night, and the surplus of the road has been so materially reduced by the subtraction of the sum necessary to pay the dividend which was not earned that many financial experts think that if an equal shortage should result for the secod quarter in 1908 the dividend would be reduced.

The policy of rigid economy inaugurated by President Mellen is visible in the reduction of the operating expenses to $8,880,113 for the quarter, a decrease of $619,530. The gross earnings were $10,913,741, a decrease of $1,756,268 over the first quarter of 1907. The net earnings were $2,033,627, a decrease of $1,136,737.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S CHINESE MINSTRELS

Guild Celebrates Nineteenth Anniversary with a Show of Much Merit.

HIT AT MERRY WIDOW HATS

Humor of Show Catches Audience—Chinamen Show How to Raise $100 for a Young Woman.

There was a Chinese minstrel performance last evening in one of the large halls in St. Bartholomew's Parish House, 209 East Forty-second Street. St. Bartholomew's Chinese Guild was celebrating the nineteenth anniversary of its foundation, showing what good minstrels Chinamen can be, and incidentally asking their friends to pay 50 cents a ticket to see how a Chinese could act.

Every one knew in the first place that it was to be a good performance, and, while the tickets said that the performance was to begin at 8:30 sharp, half the audience was in place by 8 o'clock, and all the best seats were taken. Chinamen can be fashionable like other amateurs. By 8:30 every seat in the house was taken, and the audience settled down to listen, but the 8:30 sharp was a fashionable fraud. The green curtain showed no sign of moving, and on a line drawn out in front of it appeared a placard. It read:

> Be Patient!
> They Have Been Growing in Yellow and It Takes Some Time to Turn Them Black.

The audience gave its attention to its neighbor's hats, which made the hall look like a Spring flower garden until the wearers chanced to read a second placard in front of the curtain. This read:

> Kindly Remove All Hats!
> The Merry Widow's Variety Can Be Put Behind the Scenery.

Hat pins began to fly and the scene to those who had balcony seats changed to look like pans of breakfast biscuit as the hats came off and left nicely kneaded heads of puffs in view. Still the curtain was stationary when a last hopeful placard came out. On this were the words:

> We Are Now Black, But Green in the Business, So Laugh All You Want at Our Mistakes.

It was nearly 9 when the curtain finally went up on a genuine Chinese negro minstrel scene. It was a good one. There was a red curtain in the rear, two scenery posts on either side of a slightly softer shade of red, and between them were two tall standard lights. This was the background. In front were eleven minstrels in immaculate, well-made evening dress, the centre man a little in front to make room for the one Chinaman of the party, a large man in Chinese dress, sitting in a gilt armchair on a raised platform. He was the interlocutor. The end men were smartly dressed in cutaway coats of black with red collars, large, bright red ties over their white shirt fronts, white duck trousers well turned up at the ankle to show the bright blue socks, over which were worn low, black shoes, each with a large red bow on it. One end man had a tambourine and the other bones.

"That's no Chinaman," said a man in the audience of the end man with the tambourine. "He's a real minstrel man they have for a coach. You can't fool me."

When the end man got up a little later and began to chatter fluently in something that sounded like animated Chinese laundry tags the man who knew minstrels changed his mind. It was Guy Main, the Chinaman, who has been for years at the head of the St. Bartholomew's Chinese Guild.

The performance opened with a song the last notes of which kept the tambourine man's mouth open wide until Bones from the other side of the stage came over and gently closed it.

"What did you call that song?" asked the Tambourine of the Interlocutor.

"That was the opening song," replied the big Chinaman in the centre.

"Well," returned the Tambourine, "it's no wonder it keeps my mouth open," and the audience roared with delight at the first joke of the evening.

"What's that word I dislike so much in the booktionary?" asked the Tambourine, who put all the questions. "Look at the audience and see if you can't tell." But the big Chinaman could not.

"Why, it is 'Complimentary.' Think how much more money we would have made if that had not been written on so many of our tickets."

There were many songs by the end men, with the other minstrels joining in the chorus; Brother Hallelujah recited a variation of "Mary Had a Little Lamb," Brother Abraham Lincoln recited "Never Mind the Razor," and Guy Main, the Tambourine, made his laundry tag speech. This was received joyfully by the Chinamen in audience, and the Americans wondered what they meant when they raised their hands. The speech was repeated in English, and the audience was told of a young woman who had been working a long time in China, and had now come home to study medicine, and that Guy Main had promised to raise $100 for that purpose.

"Now pass around the hat," he said, "the young lady has worked hard, we have worked hard, we have had to put our hands in our pockets for dress suits and other things, and it is your turn to work." The Chinamen passed their hats, and Mr. Lee, a professional Chinaman, sang several songs while the money was brought in.

"Sixty-five dollars and fifty-nine cents," said Guy Main. Now I'm a Methodist—no I'm a Salvation Army man. We want a hundred dollars. This show, as we give it, is worth 50 cents. With Mr. Lee it is worth $1. The money isn't for us, it is for the young lady.

"Pass around the hats again. It is nothing to sell a man a suit if he goes into a store and wants to buy one, but if he doesn't want to buy one and you sell it to him, that is business—this is business."

The minstrels sang "Climbing Up the Golden Stairs" and "Farewell" to close the performance, and the hats were given in with the money needed. The audience said a Chinese minstrel show was all right.

CONFER OVER DEBT LIMIT.

Mayor and Other City Officials Consider the Question of Subway Building.

Mayor McClellan and Controller Metz are about to draw up a statement of the exact position of the city with regard to its debt limit and the projects in which the borrowing power has already been pledged.

A conference was held yesterday in the Mayor's office, at which, besides the Mayor and Controller, Corporation Counsel Pendleton, Bridge Commissioner Stevenson, and Nelson P. Lewis, Chief Engineer of the Board of Estimate, were present. They discussed the Fourth Avenue Subway plans in the light of the expenditure to which the city is already pledged, and the real margin of indebtedness for which it can still contract.

DUMA IS A PARLIAMENT.

That Is the Universal Answer in Russia to Kokovsoff's Ejaculation.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 11.—The political crisis which resulted from the remark made recently in the Duma by Finance Minister Kokovsoff, "Thank God, we have not a Parliament in Russia yet," has passed as quickly as it arose with happy consequences to everybody concerned except Kokovsoff.

The most significant results of the incident are the general recognition that Parliament, although not parliamentarism, exists in Russia; the establishment of solidarity in the Centre Party of the Duma under the leadership of the President, M. Khomyakoff, and the striking evidence of good relations between Parliament and the Premier.

M. Khomyakoff and Premier Stolypin had long audiences with Emperor Nicholas yesterday evening, after which M. Khomyakoff announced that the incident could be regarded as closed, that the position of the Duma was firm, and that the rumor that the Emperor was in any way dissatisfied with Parliament could be denied categorically.

IRISH UNIVERSITY BILL.

Passes Second Reading in House of Commons by Vote of 344 to 31.

LONDON, May 11.—The House of Commons this evening passed the second reading of the Irish University bill by a vote of 344 to 31. The minority, which consisted of Irish Unionists and Nonconformist Radicals, was so small that it is assumed the passage of the bill in all succeeding stages is a certainty.

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in the course of the debate, expressed his gratification on account of the support given to his bill by Mr. Balfour and the other opposition leaders.

The central idea of Mr. Birrell's project is to found by royal charter two new universities in Ireland, with headquarters in Dublin and Belfast. Dublin University is to be composed of three constituent branches. Two of these already exist at Cork and Galway, the third, to be known as New College, will be founded at Dublin. The existing Queen's College, at Belfast, is to constitute the proposed new northern university, which probably will be called the University of Belfast.

INSURRECTION IN CHINA.

Large Body of Rebels Marching on Meng-tsze, One of the Treaty Ports.

PEKING, May 11.—News was received here to-day of the progress of the revolutionary outbreak in Yun-Nan Province.

Three thousand rebels in two columns were marching on Meng-tsze, a treaty port at the head of navigation of the Songkol River. A body of provincial troops met and repulsed one of the columns at Man-hao, on the Red River, last Saturday; the other column, which was following the railroad line, was not stopped. At the time the report of its progress was sent in, it was within thirty miles of Meng-tsze.

Viceroy Hsi-liang, at the head of another body of provincial troops, has left Yun-nan-fu for Amu, forty miles northwest of Meng-tsze.

OUR HOPS WORRY ENGLAND.

Unionists Plead in House of Lords for Tariff Wall Against Them.

LONDON, May 11.—The "dumping" of American hops in this country was the subject of debate in the House of Lords this afternoon.

The Unionists pleaded for a duty of $10 on every hundredweight of the American product in order to save the life of the dying local industry. Earl Carrington, President of the Board of Agriculture, on behalf of the Government, accepted the resolution urging the Government to give the matter of American hops its attention, but he declined to consider the suggested tax.

The American hopgrowers, he said, were no better of with a duty of $14 than were the British cultivators with free trade. The whole problem could be summed up in the one word "overproduction."

Signor Toselli remarked that a boy was a good substitute for the Princess Anne Monica Pia, who is now under the care of her father, the King of Saxony, Mme. Toselli's former husband.

MR. IVINS ATTACKS THE ROBINSON BILL

Ill-Advised and a Reversal of the Policy of Public Ownership, He Says.

OPPOSES 50-YEAR CLAUSE

The Bill Would Give the Interborough the Advantage, He Declares—Memorandum Sent to Hughes.

"Ill-advised, badly drawn, affirmatively mischievous, and wholly valueless from any point of view," is the characterization applied to the Robinson bill, passed by the last Legislature to amend the New York Rapid Transit act, by William M. Ivins, special counsel for the Public Service Commission, in a memorandum prepared for Gov. Hughes and given out last night. The bill is now before the Governor for signature or veto. Mr. Ivins in his ideas on the subject differs radically from the Public Service Commission, whose report to the Governor last January was in general in consonance with the policy expressed in the Robinson bill.

The memorandum of Mr. Ivins comprises a careful analysis of the rapid transit legislation of this State since 1866, and the writer remarks that there is no sorrier chapter in the history of the State. He says the Robinson bill is not, as generally understood, a repeal of the Elsberg bill, but an amendment of the entire act, and a reversal of the policy adopted by the referendum of 1894, when the people voted overwhelmingly for municipal construction. The memorandum goes on to say of the Robinson bill:

> It involves not only the reversal of the principle of original municipal ownership, but the substitution for it of the doctrine of private ownership under indeterminate franchise, something utterly unknown to the people of this State and to the people of this City. The theory of the advocates of this revolutionary plan—and it is theory pure and simple—is that if the city will make such a grant it can induce private capital to construct and own, nevertheless always reserving for itself the right, after a certain limited period, to put an end to the grant by repurchase.

After voicing his dissent from the recommendation of the Public Service Commission in January for an authorization of private construction under indeterminate franchise, giving the city the right to repurchase after twenty or twenty-five years without paying for the franchise, Mr. Ivins gives his specific objections to the Robinson bill with its fifty-year period. He says:

> Is it wise and proper that existing railways should be given an indeterminate franchise for additional routes for fifty years, or any part thereof, which indeterminate franchise might not be revoked although the original lease may have expired?
> Assuming the initial term made fifty years and by this tremendous inducement private capital were got to come in, it is doubtful if the power of revocation would thereafter be exercised, because (a) this scheme is a direct premium on keeping the corporation in politics, and (b) because the city would be likely to hold its credit and ready money for new improvements rather than for the purchase of old enterprises.

Mr. Ivins points out that under the Robinson bill the Interborough Rapid Transit Company would find itself in a better position than any new subway corporation, because the use of the city's credit has enabled the Interborough to construct a subway more cheaply than any new subway could be constructed on private credit. He takes absolute exception to one entirely new provision added to the Rapid Transit act providing that where any corporation with a contract for the construction and operation of an existing railroad may contract for extensions as extra work under the existing contract and that the term of the lease may be as long as the original lease plus the renewal.

"It is certain how this is intended to work," says Mr. Ivins. "It is meant to provide a means whereby, for example, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company might acquire east and west side routes under guise of extensions for the unexpired period of the original fifty years plus the twenty-five years' extension, and under conditions where there could be no competition, thus completely reversing the policy of the last thirteen years."

Mr. Ivins points out, however, that as there is no corporation with a contract at present for both construction and operation, inasmuch as the corporation with the construction contract is the Subway Construction Company and not the Interborough, the use of the word "and" simply invalidates the section in question and makes it an example of the uselessness of the Robinson bill in general.

BREWERY CO. SUES CITY BANK.

Litigation Over Securities Once Held by the Failed Firm of Kessler & Co.

The United Breweries Company of New Jersey yesterday brought suit in the United States Circuit Court against the National City Bank to prevent the latter from selling certain first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of the complainant corporation delivered by Kessler & Co. at the time of the bankruptcy proceedings to defendant as collateral security for notes and other obligations of the firm.

In addition to the suit against the City Bank, the United Breweries Company filed a claim with Referee Sexton for $138,894 for alleged violation by Kessler & Co. of agreements made regarding the purchase of bonds on Aug. 11, 1898, and July 29, 1903.

ENDURANCE RACE AROUSES AUTOISTS

Keenly Interested to Learn Exact Conditions of the 7,000-Mile Contest.

JUDGE GARY APPROVES IDEA

Meeting of Representative Men Will Draw Conditions That Will Be Absolutely Conclusive.

Those men who have been identified most prominently with automobile racing in this country seem to regard the coming double transcontinental endurance race as the biggest undertaking the sport has known. The day of speed contests, save as spectacles, has passed, they say. In material benefit to the automobile industry the touring event that tests the endurance is far ahead of anything possible to arrange in the speed line. The difficulty with endurance contests has been the inability to arouse widespread interest in them by the absence of the spectacular. By combining the race with the endurance test and enlisting the most prominent cars manufactured in America and abroad, the two qualities are found in just the proper proportion.

All along the line representatives of the high grade cars are indorsing the proposition and a number have declared their purpose to compete. There will surely be at least a dozen cars to start from New York to make the trip to San Francisco and return. At the next meetings of the automobile associations the race will be presented for their formal approval, while all the leading trade associations have pledged their indorsement and assistance.

On every hand inquiries are made as to the conditions of the race. The conditions have only been tentatively formulated for presentation to the meeting of the leading manufacturers and their representatives at the Times Building next Friday evening. The end sought is clearly set forth in these, however—to arrange a test which shall be thoroughly conclusive in determining automobile values, which shall show the relative abilities of the various cars to meet road conditions of all sorts such as they would encounter on a double transcontinental tour and to make the tour with the smallest number of replacements in the best time.

The race must be a race of strictly stock cars. The automobile public is not interested so much in what a specially built car can do as to what the ordinary car which it must buy and use can stand. It must be a race for cars of limited power—that is, limited to a maximum of cylinder capacity, which will include the popular size of cylinder, perhaps 96 square inches' total cylinder capacity. It must be a race for cars of a weight sufficient to stand such hard usage as a car would get in going twice across the country, above a minimum to be determined upon. These are the qualifications as to cars.

The race must be conducted without the introduction of any abnormality. There will be no shifting of crews to increase speed, no relay driving. The crew that starts from New York will return to New York with the car, except in event of accident or serious illness. The crew will consist of four men in each car, a driver, mechanician, observer, and recorder, the observer to ride on a car not manufactured by his nominator, to be determined by lot.

The test of speed will be the actual time in transit. The test of endurance will be the replacements made. Two methods of scoring the replacements have been suggested—one according to the price of the part replaced; another, according to a fixed scale of values determined by a Technical Committee before the race. By this means it is expected an accurate measure of the stand-up qualities of the machines will be given.

The detail of these conditions will be determined on Friday night, the consensus of opinion prevailing. In addition to the possible contestants in the race a number of well-known automobilists in the sport will attend and assist in making the race a success.

Commendations of the race are heard on every side. Judge Elbert H. Gary, the new President of the Automobile Club of America, said of it yesterday: "A continuous automobile trip from New York to San Francisco and return will most surely demonstrate convincingly the endurability of the machines in every detail. Every part of the machinery will be thoroughly tried out by such a reliability tour. With a large number of the representative cars participating it should develop much of the greatest value to the industry. The daily record of repairs and replacements will be indicative as nothing else would be. I personally think the trip will show clearly the high standard of excellence to which the modern motorcar has attained."

Dave H. Morris, the former President of the club, expressed the same feeling: "The race ought to be the most interesting trial of automobiles ever held, a trial under road conditions, with the full record of what each part of the machine does under the unusual stress. If accurate reports of replacements are made the endurance of the competing cars will be definitely proved, while the speed element will maintain the public interest in a unique and thoroughly interesting way. You can count on my assistance, and I think every man who has the interests of automobiling at heart will feel as I do."

Samuel M. Butler, the Secretary of the club, declared the long-distance contest was the only event which shows true values in reliability. "The proposed run should be one of the most valuable events ever held. What the man of to-day wants in a motorcar is a machine that can run for many hundreds of miles continuously, day after day, and only require the ordinary repairs and adjustments. With the racing features subordinated to the endurance results, helpful lessons cannot fail to be taught. Every autoist will be interested in knowing the running condition of the cars at the end of the test, whether they are so worn out as to entail expensive replacements, or whether they are capable of remaining in active service, with only the ordinary garage adjustments."

Low shoes loom up even larger than usual this Spring.

Because the idea gains ground that a heavier sole is sensible in hot weather as well as damp weather—keeps out the heat as well as the wet of the pavements.

Plenty of thick soled Oxfords, light soles too. $3.50 to $7.

With underwear it's not a question of keeping out heat, but of letting out heat.

That's what the Schlichten Ramie mesh underwear does so well.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 11.—The Giants faced defeat to-day, when they met Pittsburg in the first contest of the Western series. Poor judgment on the bases and a quartet of errors were mainly responsible for the visitors' downfall. They made enough hits to win any ordinary game, but Pittsburg, with but five safe bingles, was able to claim the game by the score of 5 to 2.

There was scarcely an inning in which the visitors did not get one or more hits, but many of them were wasted. On one occasion Shannon, the first man up, smashed out a triple, but he could not get home. Later in the game Donlin rapped out a two-bagger, but the Giants proved unequal to the task of taking advantage of it, and Donlin advanced but one extra base on the next three outs. Donlin made three hits, but they were offset by a brace of errors by Doyle and misplays by Tenney and Bridwell.

McGinnity pitched winning ball throughout, and had he been accorded good support the result would have been reversed. Up to the eighth inning the "Iron Man" kept the Pirates down to two hits, although two runs were scored during that time. He eased up in the eighth, when two doubles and a triple and an error by Tenney added three runs to Pittsburg's score. The Giants tallied two runs in the eighth on a three-base hit by Donlin, a base on balls, and a single by Bresnahan. The score:

Burns Declines $15,000 Offer.

LONDON, May 11.—A telegram received here from Sydney says that Tommy Burns, the heavyweight champion, has accepted an offer of $15,000 to visit Sydney, and that it is expected he will take part in three fights while the American battleships are at Sydney next August. Burns's representative in London says the champion has not accepted the offer to visit Sydney. He agreed to go if he was given $15,000 for one fight, but the Sydney Club demanded three contests for this amount, which Burns declined. Burns is now in Ireland trying to arrange a fight with "Bill" Squires.

"COPS" ROUND UP BRAVE FIREMEN

Rescue Their Waning Baseball Prestige in Ninth Inning Onslaught.

CAPT. MADIGAN THE HERO

When the Ball Doesn't Hit His Bat It Hits Him, but He Survives the Blows—Devery Chief Rooter.

The Association for Improving the Breed of Policemen and Firemen held a much needed meeting at the American League grounds yesterday afternoon, and the beneficiaries played $360 worth of ball.

The police won by the score of 18 to 15.

So far as can be learned they got no money. This is worth thinking about.

Even aside from the unprecedented situation—$360 in real money; no checks; in paid-for admissions, and no part of it claimed by the wardman—yesterday's occasion was one of unusual interest. For one thing, the score was of proportions not ordinarily associated with games on this diamond. Then, too, the object of the play was unique. The piling up of runs was purely incidental to the main purpose of the meeting, which was to determine who could hit Madigan oftenest and hardest. This resulted in a tie between the three firemen pitchers—Bruton, Spillane, and Twaddell. Mr. Madigan survived, much to the mortification of the opposition twirling staff. Better luck next time, boys.

The ceremonies attending the starting of the game were very impressive. The policemen's band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and there was not a dry eye in the vast crowd represented by the $360. Everybody stood up and uncovered, and when the band had finished everybody sat down and whispered to his neighbor: "What was that tune the band was playing?" It was very sad. Then Murphy, the amiable head operator, who has been wiring baseball since it was Three Old Cat, reached out for the gong rope and ding-donged a dirge that the brave boys in blue and the gallant fire laddies understood to be the signal to commence.

There was a nice, clean row of boxes reserved for the topside people in swell police and firemen circles. An unemployed policeman in the grand stand pointed out one of these, with a great deal of awe. "There's where Bingham's going to sit," he said. "He's just crazy about this baseball thing." He spoke enthusiastically of other boxes, where he advertised lesser stars of the Mulberry Stock Company to positively appear.

"And all the high guys in the Fire Department will be on hand," spoke up a brave smoke-swallower, not to be outdone at his own benefit.

The total of all the allied greatness was Bill Devery in a rear seat on the port side.

Madigan, Captain of the police nine, said confident things before the play started. You could shut your eyes and swear it was McGraw. But when you opened your eyes again and took good notice you could tell the difference. Mr. McGraw doesn't play ball and knows it. Mr. Madigan—

The runs started in the second innning. Capt. Madigan's bat had hit the ball. Or, perhaps, the ball had hit Capt. Madigan's bat. Now, there are only two things for a pitched ball to do any time Capt. Madigan is at the plate—it must hit either the bat or Capt. Madigan. There isn't room for any other disposition. Capt. Madigan, after the contact, started blithely for first. By the time he reached there, all tired out and fagged from the walk—feeling, indeed, as he afterward confessed to his gossip, not unlike the great Weston—by the time this feat was accomplished, then the news was broken to him that the ball had been there five or ten minutes earlier.

Two others of the constabulary—Martin and Sporing, to name names—made the bases, much to Capt. Madigan's amaze. They had walked four times the distance he had negotiated. He looked them over curiously.

Fireman Bloesser rescued a run in the second, and in the third the prides of the Bingham outfit rolled up three more runs. That made the score 5 to 1. Capt. Madigan twirled a couple of bats with an air of nonchalance, which is something you have to be a policeman to breathe. And then, in the fourth inning, the firemen did such horrible things to Pitcher Battam that strong policemen in the grand stand swore like children. That made the game 8 to 5 in favor of the firemen. You have to follow these figures closely and quickly, because they change.

Another inning and the police had gathered three more, making them 8, and the firemen had squeezed an extra tally, making them 9. In all this excitement, it must be remembered, the firemen were hitting the inviting Madigan. Sometimes they hit him hard enough to give him a base. Once they hit him so that he said his foot hurt, and he wanted another player to run for him. Always they hit Madigan.

Four more runs came to the firemen in the eighth, and that made them 13. It looked tough for Mulberry Street. And then, in the ninth, the police used their clubs with the proverbial vigor. They knocked out ten runs, and Madigan scored twice. He was hit twice, once by Pitcher Spillane and once by Pitcher Twaddell. And at that he made two scores after limping to first, the game being held up by mutual consent while the journey was in progress. The firemen could make only two in their half, and that gave the police the game.

A misguided young person billed as H. Tone essayed to umpire. After he had been physically and verbally battered he hardly figured as a half-tone.

An interesting illustration of the ruling spirit was furnished by Policeman Smith, who attended the game in the capacity of spectator, and when a chartered concessionaire with the peanut privilege attempted to make a sale, ordered him to move on to the next block or he'd run him in.

The casualty list follows:

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 11.—The local club used fourteen players to-day in a futile effort to win the final game of the series from the Yankees, but they were just as near to winning at the end of the game as they were at the beginning, as the visitors through the medium of "Doc" Newton not only prevented the home team from scoring, but held them down to two scratch hits, these coming in the ninth inning. The Yankees, on the other hand, found Burchell, the Boston pitcher, a fairly easy proposition, and won by the score of 3 to 0.

It was a bitter blow to Manager McGuire, who was set on trouncing his old confrère, Griffith. The latter's team, however, is not so easily ousted from the premier position in the championship race, and put up a gilt-edge article of ball playing. McGuire made several changes in his team before they took the field, with the hope of strengthening the batting, but all players looked alike to Newton, who was complete master of the situation from start to finish.

The Yankees opened up a big gap in the first inning, and thereafter took things easy. In addition to hits by Niles, Hemphill, and Conroy, a couple of wild throws to the plate, and a base on balls, enabled the visitors to tally two runs. In the third, Chase's bunt, followed by clever base running by the Yankees' first baseman, added another tally, and closed the score sheet for the game. The score:

NOTES OF THE TURF.

Jockey Roswell Yorke, apprenticed to W. C. Daly and rider of the two-year-old Black Mamie in the last race at Jamaica yesterday, was caught in a jostle just after the start and got a severe fall when his mount was thrown. He was removed to the jockeys' room in the starter's wagon badly shaken up and with a sprained hip. His injuries were not regarded as serious, however.

It was stated at the Jamaica race course yesterday that the Stewards of The Jockey Club had approved an order under which the track police will exclude from the grounds a number of persons recently arrived from the West who are known to have criminal records and who have been conspicuous through their betting operations.

The owners of the Newcastle Stable, one of the strong racing establishments of the present season, practically have completed terms under which the stable will secure a contract on the successful lightweight jockey, Philip Musgrave, at present in the employ of the Kentucky turfman, P. T. Chinn. The boy served his apprenticeship with Chinn, under whose care he has developed into one of the best and most fashionable jockeys now engaged in the East.

E. C. La Montagne has been appointed as Steward to represent the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association at the hunt meet to be held by a combination of hunt clubs on the Belmont Park track at Narbeth, Penn., on May 19, 21, and 23.

The barrier did not rise swiftly enough for the old horse Pretension at the start of the second race at Jamaica yesterday and Pretension, lunging forward, caught it in his mouth and broke the webbing as he left the post. The barrier had been released, however, and it was a start, with Pretension away with all the best of it. In spite of his advantage the old horse was beaten a neck after leading into the last strides.

Paul J. Rainey has engaged the lightweight jockey Joseph McCahey for the remainder of the season.

HESSIAN DEFEATS HANDICAP STARS

Three-Year-Old Gallops in Before Superman and Dandelion for Handicap.

GOLDEN PEARL WINS STAKES

Juggler and Preceptor, Both at Odds-On, Are the Only Successful Favorites at Jamaica Track.

A. J. Joyner, successor to John W. Rogers as trainer of the big Whitney racing stable, figured largely in the racing at the Jamaica track yesterday. In the two chief events the Joyner colors were carried by the winners, and in each case the Joyner horses beat about the best class fields that have competed at the meeting, Hessian, in a mile and a sixteenth handicap, winning from a smart field that included the two winners of great handicaps, Superman and Dandelion, and Golden Pearl taking the Williamsburg Handicap Stakes from a fast lot of three-years-olds.

The contest which aroused the greatest interest was the mile and a sixteenth handicap, third on the card, in which three of the five starters were appearing for the first time this season, Superman, winner of the Brooklyn Handicap last year, and Dandelion, with a Saratoga Handicap to his credit, being sent out in public trials for the Metropolitan Handicap, to be run to-morrow at Belmont Park. Superman, with the top weight, started favorite, with Dandelion and Mark Anthony II. as equal second choices. Hessian, with 107 pounds, and Castlewood, with 102, both three-year-olds, were the outsiders. Superman led off when the start was made, but in the run around the first turn Mark Anthony went to the front, while Hessian, which at the start was crowded back into last place, moved up on the turn and joined Superman, just behind Mark Anthony. The order was not changed until the horses came to the last turn, where the pacemaker began to stop and Superman and Hessian went up together, Hessian showing in front at the bend into the stretch and from there on galloping easily in the lead and winning as he pleased from Superman, hard ridden after the winner and six lengths before Mark Anthony.

Golden Pearl, winner of a maiden race last week at Jamaica, was second choice to Cohort in a field of six, for the Williamsburg Handicap, six furlongs, for three-year-olds, and, breaking quickly, made all the running and won easily by five lengths from Big Chief, while Berry Maid, cut off at the start, and Cohort, outrun all the distance, never were contenders.

The veteran campaigner, Big Ben, well forward at all times, cleverly took the selling sprint from the pacemaker, Incognito, in the run down the stretch and in the last race, the longest chance winner of the afternoon. Gladys Louis, backed from 15 to 1 down to 10 to 1 by the B. and O. Stable, brushed to the lead in the last furlong and won, going away from Sister Phyllis, which made the early pace.

The only successful favorites, both at odds-on, were Preceptor, which made all the running in the first race, and Juggler, which closed at the finish of the second race and, ridden and whipped out, beat Pretension by a neck.

NEW YORK LOSES REGATTA.

Annual Event of Middle States R. A. to be Held at Washington Sept. 7.

The annual regatta of the Middle States Regatta Association will be held under the auspices of the Potomac River Regatta Association at Washington, D. C., on Labor Day, Sept. 7. All opposition to Washington disappeared when the delegates from twenty-four out of the forty-five clubs in the association met in annual convention last night at the Harlem Casino. Philadelphia was expected to be a contender, but while the Schuylkill Navy expressed its willingness to hande the regatta, the sentiment favored a distribution of the locations and instructed the Quaker City delegate to vote for Washington. M. Connell of the Union Boat Club placed New York in nomination, but as there was no one present to second the nomination the vote for Washington was made unanimous.

There was only one change in the officials. Harry Penn Burke, Philadelphia, President; Claude R. Zappone, Washington, Vice President, and David Brown, New York, were all re-elected by unanimous votes. C. F. Muller, Palisades Boat Club, Yonkers, succeeds Samuel Cramer, New York, as Recording Secretary. President James Pilkington of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, congratulated the officers and association upon its success, which is second only to the National Association.

The report of Secretary Treasurer Brown shows that forty-five clubs are in good standing and a balance in the treasury of $134.62, with no indebtedness. The Laureate Boat Club of Troy was the only new member admitted.

It was decided to adopt a set of colors of the association. The pennant will be blue, the same size and shape of that of the National Association, with the letters M. S. R. A. in gold. The list of events for the annual regatta follows:

Junior single shells, Association single shells, intermediate single shells, senior single shells, quarter-mile dash, junior double shells, intermediate double shells, senior double shells, junior four-oared gigs, intermediate four-oared gigs, senior four-oared shells, junior eight-oared shells, and senior eight-oared shells.

The yacht is now being fitted out at South Brooklyn, and early in June Mr. Alger will start with Elfay on a cruise for Cleveland, going up the Atlantic Coast to the mouth of the St. Lawrence and up the river to the lakes. Elfay is 102 feet 6 inches long, 71 feet on the water line, and 21 feet 3 inches beam. She was built in 1904 from designs by A. Cary Smith, and was sold for her late owner, John H. Sanderson, by William Gardner.

Yale Athletes Lost for Season.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 11.—Gerard Butler and Robert Burch, two of Yale's best sprinters, who have been out of form all the Spring, to-day reopened their muscle sprains, and Coach Mack said to-night that neither could possibly start in a race again this year. He said that it was doubtful if Stevens, the former University of Minnesota sprinter, could start Saturday in the Harvard dual games. Burch is the football captain.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

"The dishonest corporation, the dishonest railroad management, should be punished," said Mr. Simmons of the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis in his brief address to the President of the United States yesterday. To this Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to assent, since it is his own doctrine. "But the honest corporation, the honest railroad management, should be protected, and this the Association relies upon you to provide," continued Mr. Simmons. That, too, is something the President has said more than once. There was no trouble so far. Nor is it reported that any movement of the Executive eyelid betrayed a sense of personal application when Mr. Simmons said, further, that his Association "feels now that the time has come to take stock, to call a halt upon radical, hasty, and experimental legislation designed to regulate industry"; and that "there have been unwise State enactments and agitation for harsh Federal laws, harmful to the properties (the railroads) from the standpoint of the operator and the employé and the investor."

The President did not miss the point, however. In his reply he begged Mr. Simmons and his associates to remember that "the apathetic acceptance of abuses in our Governmental and business administrations is more dangerous than the demagogic appeals of professional agitators to class hatred." And he continued: "So far as the present Administration is concerned, it will continue unchanged the policy of safeguarding the rights of all and of embracing every possible and legitimate means of advancing the welfare and prosperity of our country." That utterance is sufficiently Orphic to give comfort alike to the Roosevelt radicals of California, who want to instruct their delegates for a third term, and to the President's callers at the White House yesterday. Mr. Roosevelt will continue with unabated zeal to enforce those policies that his visitors plainly believe to be dangerous and destructive, but at the same time he assures them of his resolve to employ all legitimate means to advance the country's wealth and prosperity, which is what they want.

Mr. Roosevelt took occasion for about the eighth or ninth time to disclaim responsibility for the late lamented panic:

> As you have said, the depression and stagnation from which our country is now happily beginning to recover were not caused by reform legislation, but by the revelation of shocking conditions in certain of our corporations, by reckless operations in high finance, by calamity, and by certain striking, though, I believe, exceptional, instances of business and civic dishonesty.

The Tweed exposures did not cause the panic of 1873, nor was it made worse by the Crédit Mobilier scandal. The little flurry beginning with the Grant & Ward failure in 1884 was soon over. If the panic of last October was caused "by reckless operations in high finance" it is astonishing that so few financial institutions went down. In fact, the remarkable thing about it is that, however much the institutions that closed their doors may have been mismanaged, subsequent examination has shown that they were by no means insolvent, and many of them, some of the most conspicuous among them, have resumed and are doing business to-day. There is a pretty widespread belief that the "panic" was in fact unnecessary. If the exposure of risky finance and misdoing had come upon us in an ordinary time when the public mind was in a state of calm, it is most unlikely that the very severe business depression following it would have occurred. It was the state of the public mind, not the condition of the corporations and banks, that made it easy for confidence to be quickly destroyed. Mr. Roosevelt's visitors probably have their own ideas about the causes that produced this nervous, excitable, and apprehensive state of mind.

It is well that the representatives of the National Prosperity Association have conferred with the Chief Magistrate. They speak for a very large number of fairly important persons in this Nation. There is nobody in the country better capable of measuring justly and promptly what they stand for, and the weight and meaning of their words, than the distinguished gentleman who did them the honor of receiving them in public audience. Their words were wise; they will be carefully studied at the White House. They speak more wisely, for instance, than Mr. Van Cleave of the National Manufacturers' Association, who told the reporters on Sunday that he thought the President's last two messages, urging a limitation upon the issue of injunctions, "merely sops thrown to this wild wolf," meaning by "wild wolf" Mr. Gompers. Mr. Van Cleave must know that Mr. Gompers is not a wild wolf. He is the very able and efficient head of a great labor organization, and he is striving with great industry to promote the interests of the workingmen he represents. We believe that he is sometimes mistaken. Some of the measures he advocates, and notably some of the doctrines he preaches, are, we think, unwise and unsound. But how does it help prosperity to call Mr. Gompers a wild wolf? How does it help prosperity to call advocacy of the Hepburn amendment to the anti-trust law "the cheapest kind of demagogy"? In advocating the Hepburn amendments, which we believe to be altogether bad, Mr. Roosevelt is quite likely not unaware that he pleases those who believe in him and in his policies, and makes them more abidingly loyal to him. But the effective way with men who are "out for votes" is to show them that in bidding for the votes of one class they run the risk of losing the votes of other and larger classes. That is, we judge, what the Prosperity Association and the Manufacturers' Association are up to in delivering allocutions to Mr. Roosevelt, and in causing to be sent to him and to Congress telegrams from all over the country in such volume that "they were carried up to the Capitol in bushel baskets."

These two associations, by their present well-directed activities, afford a high and valuable example of the best working of institutions in a democracy. They are giving voice to public opinion, a public opinion already formed, an opinion they and those whom they represent entertain, and they are seeking by time-honored and legitimate methods to make that opinion felt and heeded at the source of our lawmaking. Law is nothing but public opinion formulated and printed in a book. In its earlier stages it is thought and vocal utterance. The thinking and talking in which these associations are at the moment engaged are salutary, they make for prosperity, they will, we are confident, bring forth fruits of which it would not be easy now to estimate the value. We hope they will keep on.

GOV. HUGHES.

The crucial work of the special session of the Legislature, convened last night at the instance of Gov. Hughes, is not outlined in the eight recommendations of his message. It will furnish the subject of a later message, which awaits the election to-day of a successor to Senator Franchot. But of the Race-Track Anti-Gambling bills and of the enforcement of the State's organic law against the politicians, the Governor gave this assurance in his Albany speech of April 26:

> The final result cannot be in doubt, else we should have reason for grave concern. I believe that this issue will be satisfactorily disposed of at the extra session. If it is not, inevitably it will be an issue in the next campaign.

Inevitably an issue for whom? Not for the Democrats, nor yet for the Republicans, who, in the event of the defeat of the bills, would be responsible. Manifestly Mr. Hughes was thinking of his own second candidacy for the Governorship, and of what that would involve for the people and for the effectual discomfiture of those who would thwart the people's will.

"WINNING FOREIGN MARKETS."

Mr. John M. Carson, Chief of the Bureau of Manufactures in the Department of Comerce and Labor, has compiled a document of great interest on the subject of foreign markets and the methods in which they may be won for American products. In part the contents of the document are drawn from the detailed reports of our Consular officers in all parts of the world, some thirty different countries being treated. These relate mostly to the methods and requirements peculiar to the several countries. There are chapters on the practical obstacles to be overcome, as to shipping facilities, as to proper packing, the parcels post, foreign advertising, and patents and trade marks. Then, as a concrete object lesson in the promotion of foreign trade there is a chapter devoted to the success of Italy in this direction, which, though most of the conditions are essentially different from our own, is extremely useful in several regards.

There is no room for doubt that our business men must before long seek foreign markets. The process has already begun, and the pressure to extend it steadily grows, on account of the increasing competition at home and the accumulation of industrial capital. Mr. Carson points out that the proportion of manufactures in our exports was only 14.78 per cent. in 1880 and 21.18 per cent. in 1890, and is now (1907) 39.94 per cent., an increase of more than 150 per cent. in less than three decades. But the part of these growing exports that consists of highly finished products, in which labor is much and material is little, is still very small. This is in great part due to the relative unfamiliarity of our business men with precisely the class of facts which this important report explains.

WHY THE EAST SIDE REJOICES—A LESSON.

The people of the east side are to raise $15,000 to be expended upon an arch and clock to commemorate the completion of the Delancey Street Subway loop. The entire town is to be invited to assist in the dedication, and there will be bands, bunting, and oratory. It is worth while to celebrate such a narrow escape as they have experienced. They are rejoicing because their neighborhood is to have perpetual light and air, with no sacrifice of their health and property to the demands of the rest of the city for transit accommodations. The occasion signifies the defeat of the contention that in order to make full use of the bridge it was necessary to build an elevated road through the new thoroughfare, and destroy the air and space which that neighborhood so needs. The gift of the delighted residents of that part of the town will be perpetual witness to the fact that they had the right of the argument.

The point is worth making, for there is an exactly similar issue pending. An application is before the authorities for building an elevated railroad through the Flatbush Avenue extension in Brooklyn, and there are exactly the same reasons for opposing it as existed in Delancey Street. But while the principle is the same the argument is stronger by the difference between Flatbush Avenue and Delancey Street.

The attempt to erect elevated structures where they should not exist has an appearance of an attempt to exclude other users of the bridges, and the erection of monstrous terminals perpetuates an evil which should be removed. The Interborough has demonstrated that there is no necessity for terminals at the river side, and the completion of the Subway loops in Manhattan and Brooklyn Boroughs will prove that there is no necessity for any railway in either borough monopolizing the bridges. Those two loops are halves of a whole, which will be the property of the city, and should be operated together for the benefit of every user or would-be passenger over any bridge or any connecting railway. The city has a hundred millions, more or less, invested in bridges which are not earning a suitable income in either money or comfort of travel. If the investment and opportunity were turned to good account something might be said in favor of further progress, but the mismanagement of the bridges thus far is the strongest argument against any further waste or risk of the public funds in the manner illustrated.

GUS OR GENE?

The expanding culture of the Middle West defies Bryanism as well as other manifestations of the tendency to return to type. Our Middle West is growing in spite of occasional atavistic setbacks, and here is the true Attica of America. Here the standards of taste once established are never departed from. Ohio and Indiana long since let the whole world know of their reverence for letters. Missouri now shows that as a mother of authors she is a prouder State than Virginia once was as "Mother of Presidents." Yet it was a shame to "turn down" Mr. Augustus Thomas as an alternate to the Denver Convention.

Mr. Thomas (familiarly known as Gus in Missouri and the Lambs Club) is one of the original admirers of Mr. Bryan, and he, like the culture of his State, knows no change of standards. For twelve years Mr. Bryan has been Mr. Thomas's only candidate for the Presidency, and we hope he will continue to be the same for twelve years more. There is safety to the country as well as profitable popularity to both gentlemen in their present mutual relationship. If they should reverse it, and Mr. Thomas should become Mr. Bryan's only candidate, there would be cause for alarm. Properly put forward, Thomas might be elected.

But Mr. Thomas will not have a chance to nominate Mr. Bryan once more at Denver, not for a political but for a literary reason. The resolution offered in the Springfield Convention to send him to Denver declared that he was Missouri's greatest man of letters next to Mark Twain. On that rock of opinion the sentiment of the State Convention split. The delegates forgot politics in a great surge of literary feeling, which is most rare in conventions, and as a majority of the delegates believed that the late Eugene Field was, next after Twain, Missouri's greatest man of letters, the resolution was defeated.

Apart from its immediate political effect, the incident ought to have a good influence. Out of it may grow a new impetus to literary culture even in the East. A new subject for argument has been brought up, and out of argument comes wisdom. Every truly advanced debating society should now take up and settle the vital question, "Which is the next to the greatest Missouri man of letters, Gus or Gene?"

BABBLING BROOKE.

The invasion of American politics by the illustrious Countess of Warwick as an advocate of the election to Congress of an Ohio Socialist is a noteworthy incident and unique. No other English noblewoman ever came to the United States and openly meddled with our politics, but it would be trite to call the Countess of Warwick sui generis. She has been herself for more years than one would care to number, in writing of a lady, and has made her own precedents. In these later years she has been probably the most illustrious representative in England of la femme nerveuse. She has taken, in her restless way, to farming and Socialism, and has even had thoughts of authorship. "The Reminiscences of Babbling Brooke" would be a very readable book for folks who like gossip of the highest kind of high life.

Since she was Lady Brooke, however, this distinguished lady, one of English society's reigning beauties twenty-five years ago, has found subjects to babble about besides the doings of her friends and acquaintances. Her babbling about Socialism in England does no possible harm except to Socialism. Her utterances in favor of the election of Wharton, in the Eighth Ohio District, will harm nobody except Wharton. What a curiously contradictory and preposterous thing American Socialism is! While striving to overturn the free institutions of a country in which every man has an equal chance, and substitute a condition of general leveling, it does not shrink from accepting the dubious advocacy of a person who has spent hundreds of thousands yearly for adornments and pleasures, and is concerned in the ownership of many thousands of acres of fair meadow and timber land.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Panic in a Restaurant. Pittsburg has a new excitement. It seems that there are reformers in that city as well as elsewhere, and, though the Pittsburg millionaire has hitherto managed to keep that fact from general knowledge, he will not long be able to do so if the reformers bring forward even a short succession of devices as startlingly novel as is one to which certain presumably well-intentioned and certainly courageous members of the Pittsburg W. C. T. U. have resorted in the hope of bettering the city's manners and morals.

The plan has the simplicity of genius, whatever else may be said about it. Soon after 11 o'clock one evening last week, as a Pittsburg paper describes the new departure, "scores of handsomely attired and bejeweled women, with their escorts, men prominent in business and the professions, were thrown into a state bordering on panic when five women slum workers entered one of the most fashionable and popular downtown cafés." Leading the little company were two special officers, referred to further on in the narrative as policemen, and the seven slowly made a tour of the big room, marching up one aisle and down another, carefully observing those seated at the tables and making solemn and audible comments, besides pointing the reprobative finger whenever they came to any woman younger than they thought ought to be in the—to the visitors—dreadful place. When they started to make another circle of the restaurant, its proprietor, who had watched these strange proceedings with amazement, angrily ordered the invaders out. They refused to go until they had completed their inspection, and their official guardians met threats of expulsion with the announcement that the place was public, the visitors orderly, and their expulsion illegal.

Now Pittsburg is wondering how often this thing is going to happen and what effect it will have on the business of "fashionable and popular downtown cafés" late in the evening. Just why the invasion of the five sociologists created a "state bordering on panic" it is not easy to understand. Whether the proprieties as understood at after-theatre suppers in restaurants were observed or not, it would seem as if the customers would have been equally calm, in the one case because there was no reason to care and in the other because they wouldn't care if there was. And one would say, speaking offhand, that the restaurant proprietor had the best of rights to extrude from his place anybody who annoyed his patrons.

Advertising the President. Artists nowadays are apt to be rather practical and businesslike persons, but if it be true that eight of them have concocted a plan to bring President Roosevelt more prominently before the American people through the distribution among them of ingenious and amusing toys bearing something of his semblance, the old stories about the artistic temperament and its slight relation to the things of ordinary life must still be true.

Of all the men in this country, if not in the world, Mr. Roosevelt is most competent to make himself an object of attention and a subject of discussion by everybody who has any interest in anything. He needs advertising about as much as does the solar system, and none of us ever forgets him for more than a day or two, if as long as that. It is well that the artists, like other folks, should study economic conditions, and if they think that another Presidential term for Mr. Roosevelt would put up the price of pictures and increase the sale of the same, they have the best of rights to convince as many as they can that he should be renominated and re-elected. But they shouldn't imagine for a moment that if the statesman of their choice is allowed to retire from office in accordance with his own wish and purpose it will be because of any forgetfulness either of his existence or of his qualifications.

It is just possible that the eight artists with the Roosevelt toy plan are trying to advertise, not the President, but— That line of thought is too painful to be followed further.

Owning and Renting. Continuing the recent discussion of the question whether the wise man owns a home or rents a house, one of our correspondents yesterday presented figures proving, as he thought, that at least for the man who had only $1,000 with which to make a first payment on a five-thousand-dollar place the attainment of ownership by the gradual extinction of his debt would involve him for thirteen years in an annual expenditure of $240 more than the rent of such a house would be.

The computation, as presented, seemed plausible, but several important elements were ignored. Among them was the possible, and in this vicinity the highly probable, rise in the value of the land on which the house stood. This alone might make the speculation directly profitable, despite the excess in cost of owning over renting. Our correspondent forgot, too, that the owner all the time gets more than the renter in the way of personal enjoyment and satisfaction.

Of course, it depends upon circumstances and taste. Sometimes the one plan is the better and sometimes the other, but it is not for nothing that most human beings are happiest when they can own a home as well as have one.

OWNING ONE'S HOME.

Points Out the Rising Standard in the Comparative Estimate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter and statement signed "E. M. B.," which appeared in The Times of today, is interesting, but, like a certain brand of whisky, "that's all." A $5,000 country house is a residence and a $27.50 city flat is a hovel. I am paying $50 per month for seven small rooms not large enough to hold a vanload of furniture. I am now building a $2,500 house on a $500 lot in the country. Each room in this house will be as big again as my present rooms are, and figure as I may I can't get my expenses over $25 per month.

So we will be in $25 per month and out tenement house gossip, nightly mixed-ale parties overhead, daily piano thumping next door, no heat in cold weather, too much heat in warm weather, dumbwaiter arguments in the back, landlord arguments in the front, &c.

Is it worth while? A PORCHFIEND.

THE ORIGINAL CUPOLA.

Mr. Watson Urges the Complete Restoration of City Hall.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I find that I was mistaken in my impression that the first superstructure of the City Hall was a dome similar to that of the Washington Capitol, but that I was not mistaken in my recollection of its superior beauty and fitness. In variety and beauty of line, in the proportion of its size to and the harmony of its design with that of the building which it crowns, even in its proper association with that building by an adequate and fitting base, there would seem to be no question of its superiority to the present spindle-shaped and unrelated clock tower.

I note that one of your correspondents, Mr. Israels, while acknowledging the fact that the existing cupola is not the one designed by the architect, is of the opinion that "most architects would agree that it is an improvement on the original design." As the proposition under discussion is not the merit of the original design, but the restoration of the City Hall in exact accordance with that design, the opinion of "most architects," even if Mr. Israels correctly voices it, would not seem to be of controlling importance.

I would, however, submit the consideration that "most architects" do not design buildings which are considered so beautiful after a hundred years that efforts are made to preserve them. It is the opinion of the few who do such work that would seem to be important, if it were obtainable. Of these few, the architect of the City Hall is evidently one; and it might be safer, in this case, to guide a restoration by his opinion rather than by that of any majority who may happen to disagree with him.

At any rate, that is what was proposed, and I shall have accomplished my purpose if I have effectively drawn public attention to the fact that the exterior of the City Hall, as it now stands, is not in accordance with the design of its architect. C. W. WATSON.

New York, May 10, 1908.

Differing Opinion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. C. H. Israels, in his communication of May 7, states that "most architects will agree that the existing cupola (of the City Hall) is an improvement on the original design." It is believed that comparison of McComb's designs with the present cupola will result largely in favor of those of the architect of the building. W. H. CROCKER.

Gathering In Cats and Dogs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals heartily indorses the humane sentiments expressed in your paper recently regarding the disposition of cats and dogs by people meaning to go to the country for the Summer. President Wagstaff, in fact, has issued a letter to the press making the suggestion that provision be made for these animals, but on one point "A Constant Reader," whose letter appeared in The Sunday Times, is in error. The wagons are going around for them "as they used to do," with this difference—the number of stray cats and dogs picked up in the streets during the last four months has increased about 300 per cent. The actual increase in the society's activities in small animals from all sources, including seizures, sick and surrendered cats and dogs, in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens, Manhattan, and the Bronx, is given by months: January, 2,114 increase; February, 2,441 increase; March, 3,407 increase; April, 4,367 increase. Total increase shown, 12,929.

The whole of the seizures, &c., for the four months was 41,369, while the total for the corresponding period of 1907 was 28,440.

In the last four months the society has found homes for 640 of the best of these small animals. The others have been humanely destroyed.

Officers of this society will gladly co-operate with "A Constant Reader" and his friends if they will communicate any cases of neglect or abuse which come to their notice to the headquarters, Twenty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, in person or by letter or 'phone.

Trapping Automobilists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The long list of arrests, in The Times for to-day, of automobilists for alleged speeding indicates the extent of the mania for "statutory fees" among police officers and constables. But in no case is there any charge of having endangered the public safety—only a technical offense under an unreasonable law. As The Times has declared:

"Underlying all these troubles is the fact that hard-and-fast speed limits are absurd. The permitted rate is often extremely dangerous, while as often the forbidden one involves no perils to anybody."

How long will this sort of legalized highway robbery continue? This "trapping" of unsuspecting and harmless automobilists for the money that can be extorted from them does not protect the public safety and is a disgrace to all who participate in it, and it is only permitted because of popular prejudice and a mistaken opinion that all automobilists are "rich"—that they can afford to be robbed of comparatively small amounts, under the name of "fines and costs."

All safe and sane automobilists, which includes nine-tenths of them, would welcome a law to authorize the arrest of any one guilty of reckless driving and the endangerment of public safety, at any speed whatever. But the present law, or its crafty enforcement, as one automobile club puts it, "permits Justices and constables to enter into conspiracies, whereby they may waylay the traveler, whether tourist or citizen, and under the protection of the law take from him large sums of money for the mere gain of statutory fees."

If the actual danger to public safety at the time the arrest is made were taken into account in the assessment of penalties, this sort of highway robbery would be stopped.

One "Thriller" in Evidence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in your columns that "A Writer of Thrillers" from Brooklyn indorses the information that no woman writer has contributed to the Old King Brady series. Now "money talks," but before asking him to name his wager, I would suggest that he inquire of the publisher of this series to whom he paid the sum of $50 for the story entitled "The Brady's Hot Chase; or, After the Horse Stealers," which was published Nov. 17, 1899? This is the only title I have in mind at present, but one story is enough to re-establish the integrity of "An ex-Publisher."

THE WOMAN WHO WROTE THE STORY.

New York, May 10, 1908.

CHEER FOR A GREATER NAVY.

President Stirs Up Applause at Cornerstone Laying in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—By an unpremeditated interlude in his speech at the laying of the cornerstone of the new building for the Bureau of American Republics this afternoon, President Roosevelt set the great crowd that heard him to cheering wildly, and gave Andrew Carnegie, donor of the building, a bigger heartache than he had had in years.

It was a sentence about the navy that started the fireworks. What the President had written about the navy for his speech was hardly more than a casual reference, but it brought a burst of applause. Instantly the President forsook his set speech, and in a minute had the whole crowd applauding and cheering as he repeated and emphasized his demand for a powerful navy.

When it was all over, Mr. Carnegie got up and talked about the great lesson in peacefulness conveyed to all the world by the two little sloops of war up in the great lakes, and then took a crack at militarism in Europe which was especially pleasing to the diplomats present.

In recognition of the prevailing religion in the great majority of the republics, Cardinal Gibbons was requested to make the invocation, and then the speechmaking began. Secretary Root and Mr. Nabuco, the Brazilian Ambassador, spoke, and then a number of cable messages from the Presidents of the various republics were read.

Then came Mr. Roosevelt. He had prepared a speech such as was to be expected from him on such an occasion, with nothing special in it to attract attention. He naturally referred to the cruise of the battleship fleet around South America, and coupled this reference with some pleasant general words about South America. In the applause that followed the South American diplomats cordially participated, pleased with the kind remarks about their part of the world. The President, however, accepted the applause as applying exclusively to what he had said about the navy.

"I like to hear you cheer the navy," he cried. "That's right!"

At that there was more cheering, and then the President turned to Secretary Root, who was seated very near him, and picked up the manuscript of the Secretary's speech.

"I want to repeat and hear you cheer one thing that Secretary Root said," he began, and then read from Mr. Root's speech this sentence: "The matters in dispute between nations are nothing; the spirit which deals with them is everything."

The crowd promptly cheered, as the President wished; but he waved his hand and cried: "Hold on; this is an interlude. I want to read another sentence—the one before what I have just read."

Then he quoted from Mr. Root: "It is too much to expect that there will not be controversies between American nations to whose desire for harmony we now bear witness, but to every controversy will apply the truth that there are no international controversies so serious that they cannot be settled peaceably if both parties really desire peaceable settlement, while there are few causes of dispute so trifling that they cannot be made the occasion of war if either party really desires war."

"Now," continued the President, speaking for himself, "that is why we want and need a navy. We want a navy so powerful that the other fellow will not have any temptation so far as we are concerned."

The most enthusiastic cheering followed these words.

INDICT CONGRESSMAN HEFLIN

Three Counts Based on His Quarrel with a Negro on a Trolley Car.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The Federal Grand Jury to-day returned an indictment charging Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama with assault with a dangerous weapon. The indictment contains three counts, two of which relate to the assault on Lewis Lundy, a negro, with whom Mr. Heflin had a dispute on a street car in this city on March 27 last. The third count charges an assault on Thomas McCreery of New York, a horseman, who was standing on the sidewalk and was struck by a bullet from Mr. Heflin's pistol.

Lundy appeared before the Grand Jury, but McCreery made no appearance before that body.

JEFF DAVIS REBUKED.

Senator Teller Tells Him to Carry On His Conversations in the Cloakroom.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—An unusual scene was enacted on the floor of the Senate to-day when Teller, in a tone audible in the galleries, angrily checked Jeff Davis's conversation with Paynter. Teller had risen to speak when Davis buttonholed Paynter in the aisle immediately behind him. The Senator from Arkansas, evidently in merry mood, was standing with his arms akimbo when Teller froze him with a look.

"If you want to talk," he snapped, "continue your conversation in the cloakroom."

Davis, red in the face, left the chamber. Paynter, with evident embarrassment, sought his seat.

Boys Out of School and Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial notice of the lack of practical education of our boys in the public schools is bound to attract attention and ultimately to do good. Please add one more consideration. The laws against child labor are likely to prove a boomerang, for by the time our boy is permitted to go to work at the age of 14 he has become a confirmed loafer and ne'er-do-weel. It is bad enough for the girls, but they may have some domestic duties to guard them, but the boy is on the street with nothing to do, forbidden to work if he would.

Better a thousand times that he should be worked to death! Why bring up a whole Nation of children to believe that work is a curse?

FARRAGUT IN MADISON SQUARE.

The spirit that burned in the clay
  Survives in the bronze; and the peerless
Old Sailor who fought in the Bay
  Lashed fast to the rope ladder, fearless

And vigilant, looks on the brawl
  Below, in its turbulent mazes.
And what does he think of it all
  As, waked by the sea wind, he gazes?

"They haste, as they hastened of old,
  Still driven by folly and passion,
Those eager-eyed hunters of gold,
  These fribbles of glittering Fashion.

"And who in that eddying throng,
  So brilliant with vigor and fire,
Will balance the right and the wrong
  When stirred by the flame of Desire?

"Aye, who of the self-loving band
  Will pause for the weal of another,
Or reach forth a generous hand
  To rescue a down-trampled brother?

"Shall these be the mothers of men—
  These moths that are mad after pleasure?
Would those save the Nation again—
  The blind, ever groping for treasure?

"'The froth and the bubbles?'—I know,
  They rise to the brim, being lighter;
But that which is hidden below—
  Who knows?—is it finer and brighter?

"Yet why should I doubt who have seen?
  Again let the trumpet awaken,
And all that is sordid and mean
  Shall dwindle, and self be forsaken;

"The land will arise as before,
  Flame-hallowed and nobler and grander.
My people are sound at the core,
  Thank God!"—says the Old Salamander.

RAYNER AND FORAKER FIGHTING ROOSEVELT

Champion of Col. Stewart Makes Bargain with Champion of Negro Soldiers.

EACH WILL HELP THE OTHER

Maryland Senator Wants Court of Inquiry—Other Needs Votes for His Brownsville Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Senators Rayner and Foraker have entered into a bargain the effect of which will be to give to each the other's aid in a move he is making to right an alleged wrong for which the President is held responsible. Mr. Rayner wants "justice" for Col. Stewart and Mr. Foraker is determined, he says, to get "justice" for the negro soldiers involved in the Brownsville affair.

In the Senate to-day Mr. Rayner introduced a joint resolution "authorizing and directing" Mr. Roosevelt, as Commander in Chief of the army, to call a court of inquiry to investigate the charges against Col. William F. Stewart of the Coast Artillery, who has been banished by the President to Fort Grant, an abandoned army post in Arizona. He will deliver a speech on the resolution to-morrow.

Senator Foraker, on his side, gave notice that he would insist upon consideration of his Brownsville bill, which commands the restoration of the negro soldiers, immediately upon the passage of the Post Office appropriation measure, which was taken up this afternoon.

The bargain between the two Senators provides that Foraker will support Rayner to-morrow in his demand for a roll call on the Stewart resolution and that Rayner shall get as many Democratic votes as possible for Foraker's Brownsville bill. Foraker needs all the help he can get, for the Senate leaders are against having his bill brought to a vote. The same thing may be said of the other measure.

The Rayner resolution in its preamble sets forth that Col. Stewart has not been permitted to see a copy of the charges filed with the President, that his request for a court of inquiry has been denied him, and that he has practically been deprived of his command. It is further set forth that he is banished "without the opportunity of defense or trial" to a deserted post, to remain there until he reaches the age of compulsory retirement in 1911.

In view of this, Rayner calls upon the President to order a court of inquiry into the charges lodged against the officer, the court to consist of not less than five officers, and Col. Stewart to be allowed all the privileges permitted before the usual court-martial, including the right to be represented by counsel.

The coalition of Foraker and Rayner is regarded here with great interest, and in each case gossip points out a different motive than a desire to right a wrong. Foraker, it is intimated, is working to strengthen his political position and insure his return to the Senate.

The same intimation is made with respect to Rayner. In his case it is pointed out that the wife of Col. Stewart is a relative of the late Senator Whyte of Maryland, and that the Whyte clan in the Maryland Democracy is extremely powerful. Some say Rayner will need the support of the Whyte faction in his fight for re-election.

Representative Sims Says Publishers' Testimony Has Been Verified.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The investigation of the Hudson River Paper Mill conducted by the House Select Committee at Corinth, N. Y., on Saturday and Sunday bore out the testimony of the publishers in regard to the cost of production, according to a statement made today by Representative Sims of Tennessee, a member of the committee. This investigation on the ground, combined with the hearings already held, said Mr. Sims, will probably convince the committee of the necessity of recommending that the present "acute" situation in the paper industry be relieved by an immediate reduction of the tariff.

"What we learned at Corinth," Mr. Sims said, "dovetails exactly with the testimony of John Norris of The New York Times and the other publishers we heard in Washington."

It is expected that the publishers will finish their side of the case to-morrow, and the manufacturers will then be heard.

A committee, composed of Messrs. Clark, Missouri; Clayton, Alabama; Fitzgerald, New York, and Rainey, Illinois, appointed by Minority Leader Williams, to-day called upon Speaker Cannon and laid before him a petition signed by all of the Democrats of the House, asking for the consideration of the Stevens bill, or any other bill, putting wood pulp and print paper on the free list.

Speaker Cannon informed the committee that he would give the petition his "most distinguished consideration and attention."

Wisconsin Papermaker Advocates Reciprocity Deal with Canada.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 11.—Samuel A. Cook of Neenah, Wis., a leading paper manufacturer of Wisconsin, an ex-Congressman, and at present a candidate for United States Senator from Wisconsin, made a statement to-night favoring reduction of the tariff on paper on lines of reciprocity with Canada.

ABBEY'S PICTURES HERE.

Eight Canvases for the Harrisburg Capitol Come on the Minnetonka.

The eight pictures from the brush of Edward A. Abbey, which are to decorate the State Capitol at Harrisburg, Penn., got here yesterday in the hold of the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka. A one-line item on the steamer's manifest, "two cases of pictures," is all there is to show the arrival of works on which Mr. Abbey spent six years.

With all care the two long boxes were lifted from the hold yesterday afternoon, lowered slowly to the pier, and started on their way to Pennsylvania. The cases were stoutly built of hard wood, the small one about 15 feet long and 9 inches deep, and the other 23 feet long and a foot and a half deep. Inscribed on the large case was the inscription: "The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, State Capitol, Harrisburg, Pa., per SS. Minnetonka." This was the only work of Mr. Abbey in evidence, for it was the artist himself who marked the case for shipment.

Four of the canvases are lunettes and four are circular in shape. The lunettes represent Science revealing "The Treasures of the Earth," "The Spirit of Religious Liberty," "The Spirit of Light," and "The Spirit of Vulcan, the Genius of the Workers in Iron and Steel." The circular pictures represent religion, art, science, and law.

VETERAN STEWARD TO QUIT.

Chief Rabien of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie Served 25 Years.

August Rabien, the veteran chief steward of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, which sails today for Bremen with 450 first-class passengers, will go on leave of absence after the next voyage and probably retire from the company's Atlantic service, owing to his wife's continued ill health.

When the Kronprinzessin Cecilie was nearing completion Mr. Rabien was sent across to New York on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria of the Hamburg-American Line to watch the working of the Ritz-Carlton restaurant system and give his opinion as to whether it would be advisable for the North German Lloyd to adopt it on its new steamer.

Mr. Rabien reported after his trip that the best plan would be to have small tables with an à la carte service and include the meals in the passage ticket, as the Ritz-Carlton restaurants were run at a loss and were only used by rich Americans. The new service of dining à la carte was introduced by Mr. Rabien when the Kronprinzessin Cecilie came out last August and has since been adopted by the Cunard, White Star, and Holland-America Lines.

Oscar Miennert, the chief steward of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, will replace Rabien on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. The retiring Chief Steward has been well known to all the regular patrons of the North German Lloyd Line for the last quarter of a century.

NEW RECREATION PIER.

Roof of Big Freight Shed at Cedar Street to be Used This Summer.

Dock Commissioner Spooner has concluded arrangements by which the roof of the freight sheds of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, between Piers 9 and 10 North River, at the foot of Cedar Street, will be converted into a recreation pier for the Summer months. The roof, which measures 40 by 270 feet, will be fitted up much as are the other recreation piers, with electric lights and a band stand, and will afford a much-needed breathing spot for the crowded tenement quarter on lower Washington and Greenwich Streets.

MISS BINGHAM HEADS LEAGUE

Succeeds Mrs. S. L. Westford in Club of Professional Women.

Miss Amelia Bingham is the new President of the Professional Woman's League. She was elected yesterday, receiving 55 out of 71 votes. She replaces Mrs. Susanne Leonard Westford, a sister of Lillian Russell, who, as President for the league last year, helped to put it on a substantial financial basis. Owing to the recent death of her husband Mrs. Westford has been obliged to go on the road, and has signed with the Edna Wallace Hopper Company for next year.

Because of Miss Bingham's recent illness it had been feared that she would not be able to accept the nomination. The league worked at its problem from 10:30 A. M. yesterday until 5 P. M., when Miss Bingham's election and that of member of Executive Committee and Chairmen of Committees was announced. On the Executive Committee are Mrs. Leone Lenard Ross, Mrs. Belle de Rivera, Mrs. E. H. Price, Mrs. Sara E. Knowles, and Mrs. Diana H. Lagen. Mrs. E. L. Fernandez was chosen Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The possibility that it might not be able to keep its present clubhouse at 108 West Forty-fifth Street has been an annual trouble of the league. It has recently had offered for its consideration the house at 132 West Forty-fifth Street, which can be purchased if desired.

SUES TO OUST SAVAGE.

Madison Square Garden Officials Seek to Dispossess Him from Theatre.

It became known last night that the Madison Square Garden Corporation had begun action against Henry W. Savage to dispossess him of his lease of the Garden Theatre. Mr. Savage controls the lease of the house, and the manager is Claxton Wilstach, who also has charge of all the Savage booking arrangements. City Marshal Henry H. Lazarus pasted a notice on the door of the theatre yesterday afternoon, which was the first news of the action to become public. The matter will come up in the Ninth Municipal Court on May 14.

Madison Corey, one of Mr. Savage's representatives, said that he did not know the cause of the action, but scouted the idea that it was caused by anything in the contract requiring the production of "The Merry Widow" at that theatre. Mr. Corey said that the contract was of several years' standing, and that it had merely been renewed, and so could contain no such special provisions.

One explanation of the action of the landlord corporation is said to be found in the failure of Mr. Savage to supply the number of weeks of attractions arranged by the terms of the contract.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Little Tykie	Cecil Spooner

After hovering about from one place to another the best rough soubrette in the country has again alighted on Broadway, where for a brief period it will be possible for New York playgoers to see her at less than regular Broadway prices. Two or three years ago, at Daly's, Miss Cecil Spooner tried to break into the circle of accepted high-price stars. Her play was not good enough, however, to establish an actress whose fame had hitherto been chiefly confined to Brooklyn. In consequence she returned to the popular circuit, where she continues to coin a fortune for herself and her managers.

"The Girl and the Detective," in which Miss Spooner is appearing this week at the Lincoln Square, is better than the average thriller, and though it does not require any great amount of perspicacity to see through the mystery that some of the people on the stage are trying to solve, the four acts contain a blend of melodrama and comedy that will entertain even a hardened and sophisticated playgoer. Also, for the uninitiated, it provides a picture of newspaper life as it never could be that is highly enlightening. Society reporters especially are recommended to see it in order to learn how they may combine the business of newsgathering with costume de rigueur, and city editors and reporters will learn tricks of the trade that they never dreamed of, as, for example, how the complete report of a great murder mystery—the leading story of the night—can be railroaded to the composing room on two sheets of note paper, after being taken down in longhand by two reporters who stand up to the job as though it were an every-day occurrence.

But though the hero of the play is a star reporter, who held back the news in order to shield his sister—the wife of the murdered English Lord—the newspaper end of the play is all over after the first act. Then begins the battle for points between the waif Little Tykie and Haggerty the detective. Haggerty has a habit of disguising himself as a chauffeur in order to deceive honest, though suspected, people, and he manages to arrive at the star reporter's rooms just after the waif has begun to distrust his promises of undying affection. As she has discovered a revolver with two chambers empty she is in a position to give Haggerty some important evidence, which leads that astute person to the conclusion that the star reporter is the murderer. He does mention, however, that this is a pistol of English make, while the weapon with which the shooting was done was the product of an American factory, conducted by R. F. Tracey, "the Iron Master of New Jersey." And when Tykie subsequently discovers that the woman who has aroused her jealousy is her sweetheart's sister and that he really does love her she is in agony at the thought of the mischief her confession will cause. This is the cue for the sleuth and several policemen to arrive. They are bent on arresting the star reporter, but Tykie knows a way to baffle them, and before the curtain falls you see the reporter escaping in Haggerty's automobile coat and goggles while the policemen grab their chief, thinking he is the man they are after. After that Tykie and the detective have a few more contests in which the latter comes out second best, and the play ends, of course, with virtue triumphant and the murderer—the Iron Master himself—properly in custody. The one-time waif deservedly looks forward to a happy marriage with the star reporter.

The play contains the usual concessions to the people who want to laugh without much caring why, and to those who want to enjoy swift spinal chills. But it is so well acted on the whole and is so nicely staged that regular Broadway patrons will get enjoyment from it now that dramatic fare is chiefly confined to the hurry-up houses. As a change from the everpresent musical comedy and vaudeville it may be commended.

It is an everlasting pity that Cecil Spooner was not discovered by a Daly or a Belascoe many years ago. Nine out of ten women of the stage who play ingénue and soubrette rôles could go to school to her and learn a lot of things. As it is she has faults that a fine stage manager might have been able to correct, but she plays with a remarkable show of vivacity and sincerity, and she is exceptionally resourceful. She is an unusually fine little artiste and, at the prices, a decided bargain for the theatregoer.

ETHEL LEVEY'S OPERA PLANS.

Sings Her Last Popular Song on Sunday—Then Goes to Europe for Study.

Next Sunday night will register the official farewell appearance in vaudeville of Ethel Levey. She will sing her good-bye song at the Circle Theatre, "just to please Mr. Isman," the actress herself explains.

Miss Levey was booked for this week at a Brooklyn Theatre, but a hoarseness of the throat caused her to cancel the engagement. She has now decided to prepare herself for grand opera, as was announced in THE TIMES several months ago.

She will sail on May 21 on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, and expects to be in Paris about May 29. Three days later she will renew her lessons under Barthelemy, the teacher of Caruso, under whose tutelage she has been during this season here. Miss Levey will continue her studies there until November, when she will go to Lombardi in Florence. Lombardi is known as the instructor of Calvé, Caruso, and Sembrich.

Miss Levey will remain in Florence while Barthelemy will accompany Caruso on his return engagement to this country. When the operatic season is over and the teacher once more takes up his residence in Paris, she will resume her lessons with him, repeating the same plan during the next season. After two years of study she expects to devote a third year to European concert work and special engagements. She will apply herself to both the French and Italian operas. She hopes to make her reappearance in the United States in either "Carmen" or "Samson and Delilah."

"Next Sunday night I shall sing my last popular song," said Miss Levey yesterday. "Then it will be hard work and little pleasure for three long years. I shall return for a short visit only to my people. Barthelemy says that I have a dramatic mezzo-soprano voice of good quality.

"I shall take my little girl with me when I leave and place her in a convent in Paris. When I go to Italy she will go with me, for I want her to learn both languages. She is now 7 years old.

"Strange to say, the last song I shall sing in vaudeville will be 'At the Ball Game,' which was written for me by George Cohan. Naturally he is much distressed at the idea of his little girl going so far away for such a length of time, but he sensibly realizes it is all for her own good."

Miss Levey says Oscar Hammerstein has promised her the first engagement.

Oscar Hammerstein Cables the News That They Will Be in the Same Cast.

THEY ARE IN LONDON NOW

Both Are Singing at Covent Garden—Mme. Melba Making Her Debut in "Tosca."

William Hammerstein, wishing to reach his father, and not knowing where in Europe that nimble impresario might be, sent three cablegrams on Saturday, one each to London, Paris, and Berlin. The answer came from Paris and included a piece of operatic news which is of more importance than any which has reached these shores in recent weeks. It read: "I have engaged Mme. Melba for part of next season. She will come in January, and on several occasions I shall place her and Mme. Tetrazzini on the same bill."

The news whizzed down Broadway to the Metropolitan Opera House, where it was much discussed, and later the few singers who are in town were in possession of the facts. As has already been announced Mr. Hammerstein has made an arrangement with the Ricordis, so that he can produce the Puccini operas next season.

Mme. Melba will be heard in "La Bohème," "Tosca," and Verdi's "Otello." These operas are not in Mme. Tetrazzini's répertoire. It is likely, however, that both singers will be heard in such operas as "Traviata" and "Lucia."

This season at Coven Garden Mme. Melba is to sing in "Tosca" and "Otello" for the first time. She has evinced a desire to get away from the purely lyric rôles to the more dramatic heroines of the operatic stage. As she and Mme. Tetrazzini are pitted against each other at Covent Garden their New York engagement together will not be their first encounter. The Italian singer opened the London season, and Mme. Melba is to return this week, making her début in "Tosca."

BOSTON HEARS NEW SINGER.

Mme. Padovani Delights Audience with Her Rendering of Lucia.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 11.—Mme. Adelina Padovani, a coloratura soprano, who heretofore had been heard in America only in New Orleans and San Francisco, appeared to-night with S. Kronberg's Knickerbocker Grand Opera Company in "Lucia" at the Majestic Theatre.

She delighetd her audience with her showy vocalism. Although her voice in the extreme upper register appeared thin and the intonation was often defective and there was occasional flatting, especially in trills, the brilliancy of the high register carried everything before it.

The greatest enthusiasm followed the duet with Edgardo in the first act, and was evinced whenever Mme. Padovani had the centre of the stage.

DYING MOTHER SEEKS SON.

Mrs. Beelden, Stricken, Is Anxious to See Francis E. Belden.

Edgar T. Belden of Pittsfield, Mass., has asked THE TIMES to give publicity to the fact that his mother has just had a stroke of paralysis and may pass away any moment in the hope that it may be seen and read by Francis E. Belden, another son, of whom the family has heard nothing for the last three years.

Francis E. Belden was last seen at Tampa, Fla., in March, 1905. It is greatly desired by other members of his family that he return to Pittsfield before his mother's death. His mother has asked for him.

His brother is willing and anxious to send him money with which to go to Pittsfield, in case lack of it might keep him away. Edgar T. Belden said yesterday that his brother was a reader of THE TIMES, and he thought mention of his mother's probable fatal illness might reach him.

EXCHANGE NEAR GOLD POINT

Day's News Includes Further Large Increase in Idle Freight Cars—Much Profit Taking.

Dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday were under the influence of considerable profit taking in the issues which had held the most prominent places during the upward movement in prices which has been in progress for several weeks past, and in some of these issues, after irregular fluctuations, net losses appeared at the end of the day. In other parts of the list, however, further sharp advances were recorded with gains of from 2 to 8 points, and even more in some issues, and the aggregate of the day's trading, which exceeded 1,000,000 shares, was the largest recorded in a fortnight. While such issues as Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific, and Union Pacific were under sufficient selling pressure to cause them to show net losses or only very small gains on the day's trading despite the vigorous advances in some other parts of the list, the market for these shares was broad enough to enable the profit-taking sales to be conducted with little difficulty. Among the stocks which were conspicuous for further advances yesterday were Amalgamated Copper, which gained 1⅝ points; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, which was up 2⅞ on the day's dealings; New York Central, which gained 2⅛, and United States Steel preferred, which made a net advance of seven-eighths of a point, while in other quarters there were such advances as 4 points in New York, Ontario & Western, 3 points in Chesapeake & Ohio, and gains of from 2 to 7 points in several inactive issues. Among the stocks which made sharp gains on relatively light trading conspicuous places were held by several of the New York City traction issues, including Metropolitan Street Railway, which rose 6 points, and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred, which gained 2¾ points.

The further advances recorded yesterday, which were vigorous in many parts of the list despite the irregular character of the market as a whole, did not find encouragement in the day's news, for this included a return of the foreign exchange market practically to the gold export point despite the recent sales of large blocks of American securities in the European markets, and the publication of the fortnightly report of the American Railway Association showing a further large increase in the country's idle freight cars. These figures, which afford the most convincing evidence of the fluctuations in the traffic being handled on our railways, show that between April 15 and 29, the date of the report made public yesterday, the number of idle freight cars increased in round numbers from 375,000 to 413,000. When it is recalled that during the first half of April there was an increase of 68,000 in the number of idle freight cars, it is made clear by the figures reported yesterday that the declining tendency during the month of April brought a further substantial contraction in railway traffic which means necessarily a contraction in the country's business.

Foreign exchange rates rose yesterday to 4.87 for demand sterling, which, with the sterling rate in Paris on London quoted at 25f. 13c., brought the market practically to the gold export point. Bankers were making preparations yesterday for further exports of gold to Paris, and the chances yesterday seemed to favor a resumption of the gold export movement. The early completion of plans for further important railway financing, a part of which may be arranged abroad, may prevent a renewal of the gold export movement, but with continued excessive ease in money at this centre it will not be surprising if this market is called upon to make further shipments of gold to Europe.

MORE IDLE FREIGHT CARS.

Total Now Exceeds 400,000, the Worst Showing Since November.

Over 37,000 freight cars were added during the last half of April to the equipment which had previously been placed in enforced idleness, bringing the total of idle freight cars up to 413,338, according to the fortnightly report of the Committee on Car Efficiency of the American Railway Association, made public yesterday. During the month of April no fewer than 106,000 freight cars were placed on the side tracks because of the declining volume of traffic.

The showing as of April 29 was by far the worst that the railroads have made since the volume of traffic began to decline last November. From the beginning of February to the middle of March some little improvement was shown, the number of idle cars having decreased during this six weeks' period from 342,000 on Feb. 5 to 296,000 on March 18. After that date, however, the traffic again fell off, and between the middle of March and April 29, the date of the report made public yesterday, the cars added to the idle list amounted to 117,000.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Market Strong, with Trading in Moderate Volume on the Curb.

SOME MINING ISSUES UP

Though Some Recessions Are Made from Opening, Close in Most Shares Is at Highest Level.

The Curb market was moderately active yesterday with considerable strength shown in the mining issues. Though there were in many issues recessions during the day from the strong opening, the closing prices in some stocks were at the highest levels. Cumberland-Ely rose from 8 to 8¼ on light trading. Nipissing sold up to 7. The short interest in Yukon Gold, which was squeezed last week, is said to still have considerable contracts out, and the shares yesterday went to 4⅝, though the close was at 4½, even with the opening.

***

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Good Advance Information.

Before the opening of the market yesterday a trader in one of the important brokerage houses in the Street predicted a substantial advance in New York Central. Even those who were bullish were not inclined to concede the accuracy of his statements, and in fact some took issue with him. In order to emphasize his own belief in the accuracy of his information he offered to bet a substantial sum that before 12 o'clock the stock would show an advance of at least two points over the closing figure of Saturday. Although this indicated his own belief, it looked so good that there were plenty of takers of any bets of that kind that he desired to make. A glance at the tape or the record of the day's transactions will show that he won his bets handily. This trader simply said that he regarded the information which he had obtained as absolutely accurate, and he was perfectly willing to stake his reputation and a moderate amount of cash that it would develop just as had been predicted. Subsequently the gossip had it that an extended short interest in New York Central had been discovered and that arrangements had been perfected to make it uncomfortable for them. In any event there was a foreknowledge of the movement.

Business Man's Opinions.

The official figures with regard to idle freight cars were published yesterday, showing a big increase in the number of idle cars between April 15 and the last of the month. In fact, the figures were record ones, but apparently excited only ordinary attention. A member of one of the biggest, if not the biggest, lumber companies in the Northwest, is in the city at the present time, and while at his bankers' yesterday he was asked for an expression of opinion on the business situation as he found it throughout the country. He said: "Business is bad, and it is my opinion that it will be worse. This seems out of line with all the good tidings of returning prosperity which we are hearing from day to day, but it is my deduction from my knowledge of actual conditions. I see it in every section of the country, but I do not believe that even a further recession will beget greater pessimism. The feeling that conditions are logical prevails."

Bond Men Differ.

Within a week the partners of a bond house in this city were approached with regard to the handling of a substantial block of good bonds. Practically the only adverse factor in the whole situation was that the enterprise was a new one which had just been completed, so that earnings were just beginning, but back of the project were some very big business men, and the directorate contained names that were of the highest credit, while the engineering reports on the project were first class. One of the partners made a thorough study of the entire proposition, and recommended that the bonds be purchased and offered for sale by the house. When the matter came up for final decision it was generally agreed that the senior member should practically decide what should be done. He listened to the glowing report of his junior partner, and then, contrary to expectations, pointed out that, in his opinion, the time was not ripe for undertaking the flotation of any new lot of bonds, particularly considering the conservative character of their clientele. The discussion became general, but in the end the views of the senior partner prevailed and the bonds were not purchased. Another house took the matter under advisement immediately thereafter, and within twenty-four hours announced that it was ready to close the contract.

Careful About Lending Stocks.

Conservatism in the matter of lending stocks still prevails and it is likely to prevail for some time to come. Although the recent failures were only two in number, it would appear that the effect on brokers generally was extreme. This tends to restrict to some extent bearish operations, but undoubtedly the restriction is really very small. That it did tend and possibly does tend yet to make the short side of the account less comfortable is generally admitted. With regard to some special stock a broker called a firm up on the telephone yesterday morning and told them that he wanted to borrow 500 shares of it. He was told that they had the stock and would loan it, but that it would be kept marked up to the market all the time. This caused a little irritation at first, the broker apparently taking the statement as a reflection on him. But it was soon satisfactorily explained. The usual procedure is to adjust differences on fluctuations of approximately three points.

Making Bulls Out of Bears.

"If they keep this market going much longer," said a member of an old-time house, "we shall have nothing but bullish traders here. Three weeks ago there was not a man in the office who could be induced to buy stocks. The first part of the rise excited their ridicule. Then they began to take losses and became extremely antagonistic toward the market. Then a few of them threw, as they thought, discretion to the winds and went long of stocks. They made some money. Some of the others did the same, and on Friday of last week the last militant bear in the office capitulated. Now they are all bullish, and it seems to me that there is a very good chance that it will be just as difficult to make them believe in the possibility of a reaction as it was in the probability of an advance. Possibly there are other offices in which the customers are like ours."

MEXICO'S NEW BANKING LAWS.

Bill Raises Minimum Capital of Chartered Banks to Half a Million Gold.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 11.—Minister Limantour has sent to Congress the bill containing the new banking laws. One of the chief provisions of the bill prohibits any bank from lending money to its own officials during the first year of its existence and restricting such loans after the first year.

Under no circumstances may an official of a bank borrow from his own institution any funds unless he gives security 50 per cent. in excess of the amount of the loan.

The bill limits loans of bank issue to periods of two months, prohibits uncovered drafts, prohibits Government bank cashiers from holding office in States in which chartered banks are situated, and raises the minimum capital of chartered banks to a million pesos, or half a million in gold.

CINCINNATI BROKERS FAIL.

Losses of Stapeley, Indicted for Bucket Shopping, May Reach a Million.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 11.—George H. Stapeley & Co., brokers, made an assignment to-day to William Bodener. No figures are yet obtainable, but the firm has been doing a heavy business, having a large number of branch offices.

Reports place the firm's losses all the way from $300,000 to $1,000,000. The cause given for the failure was pressure of creditors. Stapeley is the third of those who were indicted two weeks ago for alleged "bucket-shopping" to close his business.

The firm was capitalized at $100,000, of which $80,000 had been subscribed, and had succeeded to a large portion of the business formerly handled by the late Odell Stock Company.

MERCHANTS TAKE UP FREIGHT INCREASES

No Decision Reached, but Another Meeting Is Called for To-morrow.

NOT ALL ARE OPPOSED

Many Recognize That Fairer Profit for Roads Would Enable Them to Make Heavy Purchases.

Committees of the Merchants' Association and of the Board of Trade and Transportation held meetings yesterday to consider the proposed freight-rate increases in the trunk line territory, which have practically been agreed upon, to go into effect Oct. 1. The management of the Produce Exchange also has under advisement the attitude which that association will assume toward the movement. In neither case, however, was any definite decision reached yesterday.

The Executive Committee of the Merchants' Association had before it the invitation to a joint conference on the matter, issued last week by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, and a special meeting of the Board of Managers has been called for to-morrow to consider the subject.

The Committee on Railroad Transportation of the Board of Trade and Transportation yesterday decided that the proposal to advance freight rates had not yet been placed in sufficiently tangible shape for formal consideration, and another meting will be held on May 22, by which time, the committee thought, more specific information might be had as to what the railroads propose in the way of freight-rate increases.

While in neither case was a vote taken, it seems probable that the Board of Trade's committee is opposed to any increase, while the Executive Committee of the Merchants' Association is inclined to regard the question as an open one. It is known that some individual members of the association regard the proposed increases as reasonable.

Many business men, it is said in well-informed quarters, are impressed with the claim of the railroads that the business of the country at large would be greatly improved by a moderate advance in freight rates, which would add materially to the purchasing power of the railroads and enable them to order freely all classes of supplies, which they are buying now only in hand-to-mouth fashion. The railroads, it is estimated, purchase at least half of the iron and steel output of the country and more than half of the rough lumber.

NEW HAVEN WILL OBEY.

Will Sell Holdings in Trolley Companies and May Dissolve B. & M. Merger.

BOSTON, May 11.—In a statement of the Legislative Committee on Railroads to-day Charles F. Choate, Jr., counsel for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, said that the principle enunciated by the Supreme Court in its decision on Friday against the holding of the stock of the several railway lines by the New Haven Company applies as well to the holding of Boston & Maine stock, and it will be necessary for the New Haven Company also to dispose of this stock unless the Legislature decides that it is consistent with the interests of the Commonwealth that it should be retained.

Mr. Choate declared that the company would promptly obey the decree of the court.

Following Mr. Choate's statement, Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for the so-called Anti-Merger League, presented bills to the committee for their consideration.

The first related to the disposition of the 109,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock held by the New Haven Company, and provided that the stock should be sold before Jan. 1, 1910, and that it should be unlawful for the New Haven Company to control, or attempt to control, the Boston & Maine Railroad, and that no Director of the New Haven should hold any office or act for the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The second bill was general in its nature and provided that no corporation should own any stock in any railroad incorporated in this State unless authorized by a special act.

WESTINGHOUSE PAYS STOCK.

Atha Steel Casting Co. Accepts $61,000 in Shares as Settlement of a Debt.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 11.—United States Judge Cross signed to-day an order directing Benjamin Atha, Ernest F. Harder, and George W. Hebard, receivers of the Atha Steel Casting Company, to accept $61,000 of the stock of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in discharge of the merchandise liability of the Westinghouse Company to the Atha Company.

Counsel for the receivers stated that the claim against the Westinghouse Company was for work done and represented 45 per cent. of the whole business of the Atha Company, and that under an agreement that when the Merchandise Creditors' Committee completed its work for the reorganization of the Westinghouse Company the Atha Company is to get the Westinghouse Company work, which business would rehabilitate the Atha concern.

The latter company will now get $61,000 of Westinghouse stock, a dollar in stock for every dollar of liability. By the terms of the order the Atha Company has been made a party to the plans of the Merchandise Creditors' Committee of the Westinghouse Company.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Dull Day in London and Berlin—Prices Hold Firm in Paris.

LONDON, May 11.—Money was in moderate demand and good supply on the market to-day. Discounts were quiet, and the Continent bought the bulk of the £450,000 in gold offered.

On the Stock Exchange business was slack, arrangements for the settlement monopolizing attention. Gilt-edged securities weakened on adverse Indian news, but consols improved in the afternoon. Home rails were heavy pending the outcome of the labor conference. Foreigners were better on Paris buying of its specialties.

American securities continued the strongest section of the market in sympathy with Wall Street and professional operations. Coal shares led in the advance, and Canadian Pacific benefited on good crop reports. Later the Continent supported the low-priced issues, and, with New York buying well, the market became active, made further advances, and closed firm.

Bar silver was steady, 24 3-16d per ounce.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—To-day's local market displayed a broadening tendency such as has not been recently witnessed. More different stocks were dealt in than for a long time. It was in fact the best market Philadelphia has had in recent months. United States Steel was the active leader of the arbitrage issues, supplanting Reading. Cambria Steel made a strong spurt, while an old-fashioned boom developed in Lehigh Valley, over 14,600 shares changing hands.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—A collapse of the May contract was a feature yesterday, and later deliveries were unable to withstand the break. Exporters took only thirteen loads. State reports from Kentucky and Michigan were received, the former giving a condition of 99, against 96 by the Government and 98 in April, while Michigan figures were 80 for condition, compared with 86 late last month. Complaint from that quarter of Hessian fly damage came from Kansas. The visible supply showed a decrease of 2,272,000 bushels, compared with a reduction last year in the corresponding week of 1,853,000 bushels. Cables included declines of ⅝c to 1⅞c at Liverpool and 1⅞c@2⅛c at Budapest, the newly formed market of Buenos Ayres showing the only advance, which was 3⅝c to 8¾c per bushel. Cash wheat in New York was quoted as follows: No. 2 red, $1.08 nominal in elevator and $1.08¼, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.17¾, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.14¼, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—There was a slump in May corn also, yesterday, although wet weather through the belt and a report that area in Kentucky was 10 per cent. less than last year started early buying. Support was not sustained in the afternoon, however. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted 78c nominal in elevator and 75c nominal, free on board, afloat.

Raak Trout Are Held Dutiable at 30 Per Cent.—Other Decisions.

In overruling a contention raised by C. L. Benson of Chicago, the Board of General Appraisers held yesterday that so-called raak trout packed in packages of less than one-half barrel must pay duty on the basis of 30 per cent. ad valorem.

The importer maintained that the fish should be admitted either as fresh-water fish at the rate of one-fourth of one cent per pound, or else under the provision for fish not specially provided for at three-fourths of one cent per pound. The petition of the same importer for a reduction in the assessment made by the Government on cloud berries was refused by the board.

A protest was decided adversely to the claims of E. Longhi & Co. of Chicago, involving the classification of edible fish eggs. The board held the eggs dutiable at 30 per cent., and not at the lower rates demanded by the importers.

NEW YORK Catskill Mountains.

The Best Place to Spend Your Summer Vacation Is in the Historic, Picturesque, and Healthful
CATSKILL MOUNTAINS

The high altitude of this great mountain sanitarium, ranging from 2,000 to 4,000 feet above the sea, is an important factor in the selection of a Summer home.

In addition to the private parks there are over 1,000 hotels and boarding houses amid the green fields and towering crags in this country of scenic beauty and wildwood charms.

The Ulster & Delaware R.R.

offers superb train service without change of cars between Philadelphia, Jersey City, and New York and all points in this popular Summer resort.

The Rip Van Winkle Flyer, leaving New York, (42d St.,) via West Shore R. R., at 1 o'clock P. M., will make first trip May 23d.

The Summer time schedule for season of 1908 will go into effect Sunday, June 21.

The "Catskill Mountain Limited," composed exclusively of parlor cars with observation car, leaving New York on week days at 10 o'clock A. M., will be a popular feature of the service.

The West Shore R. R. will sell excursion tickets from New York and Brooklyn on May 29th and 30th, via Ulster & Delaware R. R., to all points in the Catskill Mountains, at one fare for round trip, giving an opportunity to select your Summer home or boarding place. These tickets will be good for return trip on any train up to midnight of June 1st inclusive.

An illustrated Summer Book, with map of the Catskills and list of hotels and boarding houses, will be sent free on receipt of 8 cents postage.

A Period of Sober Reflection

The investor who has decided to buy Guaranteed Mortgages wants the best guarantee. The Lawyers Mortgage Company claims its guarantee is the best for the following reasons:

It is the only Mortgage Company that limits the amount of mortgages guaranteed in proportion to its Capital and Surplus. In other words, it will not spread its guarantee so thinly over large amounts of mortgages as to weaken its effectiveness.

CONFESSION MADE IN NOTE SWINDLE PLOT

Ex-Convict Tells How Gundlach-Barry Combination Sold Notes of the Keyport Victims.

TOOK NOTES FOR $150,000

Barry, Note Sellers Were Told, Was Worth Ten Millions—Negro Financier Also Involves the Gang.

Although the examination in the Tombs Court was postponed until to-day, there were important developments yesterday in the note-brokerage swindle that has been under investigation by Assistant District Attorney Kindleberger. The two prisoners already under arrest, John Gundlach and Regulus Shippy, were joined by another, Charles E. Barry, who says he is a lawyer. He is seriously involved in statements made to the authorities by newly-discovered victims of the note-brokerage game. A third individual concerned in the situation, Robert Cornell, a colored janitor-financier of the building at 72 Trinity Place, has made a statement which indicates that he will be a valuable witness for the State.

In addition to these developments the story was rounded out yesterday through the depositions of President P. C. Sherman and Treasurer H. H. Hull of the Sherman Cutlery Company of Keyport, N. J., telling how the Gundlach-Barry combination forced that concern into the hands of a receiver in two months by getting hold of an issue of $150,000 notes authorized and issued for the purpose of extending a prosperous and growing business.

In April of last year the Sherman Cutlery Company decided to make the improvements which had been in contemplation for some time, and accordingly an advertisement was inserted in a New York newspaper for a broker who would handle an issue of $150,000 notes. Gundlach, it appears, had been carrying his advertisement in the same newspaper for some time previously, and he got into communication with the Sherman Cutlery Company. Accordingly, Mr. Sherman and Mr. Hull came over to the Astor House to meet Gundlach. He represented that he was a note broker with influential connections among large investment interests and gave certain business references which were found not unsatisfactory.

First Move in the Game.

While the conversation was going on in the parlors of the Astor House an undersized, gray-haired man walked through the room, spoke to Gundlach in an undertone for a few minutes, and passed out. Mr. Sherman and Mr. Hull declare that Gundlach told them that the stranger was Charles E. Barry, his principal, who was worth in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 and was sure to take the issue of notes. Yesterday the two victims of the note swindle identified Barry as the individual who walked through the room, and in his statement to Assistant District Attorney Kindleberger after his arrest he did not deny that he had passed through the room at the time. Barry is a lawyer and lived at the Hotel Buckingham, Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue.

The result of the conference and of subsequent negotiations, in which personal representations by Barry are said to have had a considerable part, was the execution of an agreement between the Sherman Company and Gundlach, binding the latter within two weeks to dispose of $108,000 of four months' notes, less a 6 per cent. discount and a commision of 5 per cent. Gundlach talked big of Barry, his backer. He told the unsuspecting Jerseymen that Barry had authorized him to hire a $25,000 suite of offices in this city, and that he had a big office in the Betts Building in Philadelphia. Barry himself is said to have pictured a fortune in unmined coal lying beneath many thousands of acres of undeveloped land in West Virginia.

The Directors of the Sherman Company authorized the note issue, and they were delivered about May 1, 1907, to Gundlach for disposition. A week went by and there was no return. Then the firm demanded a payment on account, and Barry, according to the statements of Mr. Sherman and Mr. Hull, said that he would discount one note and advance the proceeds. He accordingly sent a sight draft on an alleged real estate firm in this city for $1,500, but the draft came back "N. G." The address of the real estate firm was a furnished room house, and its office, presumptively, a hall bedroom. Such an office was maintained by P. Horton Sumner, an ex-convict, with whom Gundlach and Shippy have had dealings in some of their operations.

The Jersey cutlery manufacturers then discovered some of the notes had been hawked in among New Street note brokers, and some were in the hands of "brokers," who were unknown to the world of finance. Some were in the hands of innocent investors, but the limit was reached when Robert Connell, the colored janitor-financier, turned up with $6,000 of them. The result was a receivership.

An Ex-Convict Confesses Plot.

The structure Mr. Kindleberger and Detectives McConville and Nelson had built around the Gundlach-Shippy-Barry combination made the Assistant District Attorney and his allies all the more anxious to hear from Charles H. Gardner, an ex-convict, now a fugitive.

Campbell, in his confession, told of the Sherman Cutlery Company notes, and declared that they had been divided for disposition as follows: $60,000 to himself; $15,000 to William E. Crampton, a Brooklyn broker whom the authorities consider a perfectly innocent party; $15,000 to Adolph Jacobs of 14 Church Street, at present out of town and wanted here and in Hoboken, where he is under indictment for violating the Postal regulations; $3,000 to S. A. Stein, a note broker, who is considered an innocent party; $30,000 to Major John Widenmann of West Haverstraw, N. Y., also an innocent party, who returned his notes to Barry, from whom they came; $3,000 to Barry personally, and $3,000 to Carl Williams, against whom the authorities have no complaint. The total of these allotments exceeds the total of notes placed, because of the return of Major Widenmann's allotment and their subsequent disposition elsewhere.

The Campbell confession, however, goes on to tell that the Sherman firm began to contest the validity of the issue, and persons to whom the notes had been given found themselves unable to do anything with them.

Connell, the colored man, explained yesterday that he had been threatened by Gardiner if he ever told the District Attorney, and when asked in particular in what the threat consisted, told Detective Nelson that Gardiner had told him he would put the Black Hand on him.

Another Note Broker Victim.

The case against Shippy and Gundlach already prepared had to do with the theft of $12,000 of notes from Alfred Vischer. Gundlach admits getting these notes and giving them to Shippy, who gave them to Connell, who turned them over to Gardiner, and Gardiner gave some of them to Michael Jacobs, a lawyer, who says he was acting for Frank C. Helm, a Boston client.

AFTER McINTYRE WITNESSES.

Father of Bankrupt Broker Among Those Hard to Find—Case Delayed.

The hearing before United States Commissioner Gilchrist yesterday in the matter of the location of all possible assets of the defunct brokerage firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co. was continued until to-morrow at 2 o'clock because of the failure of the receivers to have subpoenas served on a number of necessary witnesses. One of those wanted is Ewen McIntyre, father of T. A. McIntyre. Irving L. Ernst, counsel for the receivers, said yesterday that the elder Mr. McIntyre had probably left the city, as the subpoena servers had failed to reach him. T. A. McIntyre himself is still a patient in a sanitarium in the city.

In the settlement of the concern's affairs an interesting point has arisen in the matter of the two life insurance policies carried by T. A. McIntyre in favor of his company. These policies are for $100,000 each and are held in the Equitable. The annual premium is $6,000, and the last day of grace for the payment of the seventh premium was May 9. There has been borrowed on these policies $15,000, which sum represents the full cash value of the policies.

Mr. Ernst, for the receivers, said yesterday that the receivers had sent to the Equitable a check for a sum sufficient to cover the payments on the policies until July 1. This check has been sent back to the receivers. The company wanted the annual premium, which is said to be called for by the terms of the policies.

NO SALE YET OF U. P. BONDS.

Report That Issue Price Has Been Fixed at 93½ Denied by the Bankers.

The price at which the Union Pacific's forthcoming bond issue is likely to be sold to the banking syndicate, which is expected to underwrite or purchase the issue, according to report circulated in the financial district yesterday, is 93½.

The Street had previously heard that the amount of the issue to be placed in the near future was $40,000,000 out of the authorized issue of $100,000,000. The only comment on these reports made in banking quarters where accurate knowledge of the Union Pacific's financial plans is likely to be had, was that the terms of the sale of the bonds had not yet been arranged.

TO REDUCE COTTON ACREAGE.

Farmers Will Protect Themselves Against a Heavy Crop and Low Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 11.—Throughout the cotton States this week every local branch of the Farmers' Co-operative and Educational Union of America will consider the question of plowing up a certain portion of their planted cotton lands, as an insurance against an excessive crop. Already many locals in Alabama have voted to reduce their acreage.

All fields where the excessive cold has damaged the plant, where floods have damaged large areas, and where the soil is lean, the ground will be planted in corn, peas, and grass and forage crops, if the advice of the officials of the union is followed.

The floods and storms in Texas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, and Louisiana have made it necessary to replant a large area, and the ground will not be in condition for such replanting until too late to make a crop. It is estimated that 20 to 24 per cent. of the original acreage will not be cultivated, but planted in other crops.

This action will have the effect of completely nullifying the Government report to be issued May 25, for all the figures gathered to date will have to be revised, and it will be June 10 before any accurate data can be compiled.

The fields of more than 1,000,000 farmers will be affected by this new procedure.

ROOSEVELT AS A BOY ORATOR.

Made His Maiden Speech at 10 in Presenting a Library to Seamen's Society.

The fact that President Roosevelt made his first public speech as a boy of 10 for the American Seamen's Friend Society was recalled at the annual meeting of that organization yesterday afternoon, when an autographed photograph from the President was presented to the society's new Seamen's Institute. Several men who heard young Roosevelt bestow one of the society's libraries on board the clipper Rival at Pier 18 on Dec. 12, 1868, were present yesterday and described the maiden speech of the youthful Roosevelt, who, with a dozen of his playmates, had contributed toward the library. After his oratorical efforts the youngster climbed from stem to stern of Capt. Doane's clipper.

As Honorary Vice President of the American Seamen's Friend Society, President Roosevelt still retains his interest in the work with the following officers, who were re-elected yesterday: Charles S. Stoddard, President; Daniel Barnes, Vice President; G. McPherson Hunter, Secretary; Clarence C. Pinneo, Treasurer.

Edgar L. Marston, Frederick B. Dalzell, Charles B. Parsons, Fritz Von Briesen, and Theodore L. Peters were chosen to serve another term on the Board of Trustees.

The photograph of President Roosevelt, bearing his autograph and the inscription "With heartiest good wishes," will be framed and hung at the new $325,000 institute which the society hopes to open this Summer at the corner of West and Jane Streets.

ICE TRUST LOSES MOTION.

Justice Davis Denies Inspection of Grand Jury Minutes.

The recent application of the American Ice Company to inspect the minutes of the January Grand Jury, which investigated its affairs, was denied yesterday in a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Davis. The decision, in part, said: "To grant the present application would be to give to the accused in advance of final action by the Grand Jury the evidence upon which that final action is based."

SUES SENATOR AGNEW IN THE LOGAN DEAL

Mining Company's Director Enjoins Him from Disposing of Shares Held for a Loan.

CALLS TRANSFER A FRAUD

And Claims the Senator Knew of the Alleged Trickery—Walter S. Logan's Heirs Defendants, Too.

John J. Gibbons, a Director and stockholder of the San Luis Mining Company of Mexico, obtained a temporary injunction from Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court yesterday restraining Senator George B. Agnew from disposing of certain shares of the stock of the company held by him as security for a loan of $150,000. Mr. Gibbons bases his action on allegations of fraud, of which he claims Senator Agnew was aware at the time the loan was made.

The Senator, in his answer, says that he supposed the loan was made to the company and that he accepted the shares, which amount to something over 100,000 in number, as security without questioning the legitimacy of the transfer. He denies that he was aware that anything was wrong with the title to the shares.

On the other hand, the complainant alleges that the shares were not obtained in a legitimate manner and that the men who transacted the loan for the Senator knew of the irregularities and that, therefore, he must also have had knowledge of them.

The first of the notes on which the loan was made falls due on May 20, and as they are serial and fall due on the date of the first if it is not paid, the stock is in danger of being foreclosed. The argument on the making of the injunction permanent will come up on May 18.

The San Luis Company was organized in 1898 by Walter S. Logan of the law firm of Logan, Demond, Hanford & Read of 27 William Street. Several years later he transferred to the company his interest in two other mining concerns of which he was the promoter, and received a large block of the stock on the transaction. The company was capitalized at $3,000,000 with 300,000 shares of a par value of $10 each. Mr. Logan was President of the new company; his secretary, Miss Myra B. Martin, was Secretary, and the Treasurer was George B. Treadwell. The offices of the company were Mr. Logan's law offices.

In Mr. Gibbons's complaint he alleges that all the money obtained for the sale of stock was placed to Mr. Logan's personal account in the Brooklyn Trust Company, and that he "converted the same to his own use and the use of other companies in which he was interested as promoter." He also alleges that Mr. Logan paid himself 10 per cent. commissions on all stock sold without authorization from the Board of Directors of the company, and that "the amount thus diverted and converted was in excess of $125,000."

It is also alleged that Mr. Logan sold stock to himself at a lower figure than he disposed of the stock in the market, and that it was in this manner that he obtained possession of the stock which was later transferred to Senator Agnew.

Mr. Logan died on July 19, 1906, and left a will which divided his stock equally between his sons, Hollister and Walter S. Logan; his sister, Janette Logan Bayles; his wife, Eliza K. Logan, and Miss Martin. They are all co-defendants in the present action, together with Britton Davis, the present President of the company, Senator Agnew, and the company itself.

Mr. Gibbons was President of the company for a short time after Mr. Logan's death, but on Jan. 17, 1907, he was ousted in favor of Mr. Davis through the control of the stock held by the heirs. Then the stockholders succeeded in obtaining an examination of the books of the company by an accountant, and his report was read at a meeting of the Board of Directors held on Feb. 6, at which, it is alleged, the frauds were revealed.

The transfer of the stock to William A. Adair, a clerk in the employ of Senator Agnew, is recorded as taking place on the week following. It is further alleged that the loan was made through Mr. Davis to Miss Martin, who in turn loaned the money to the company.

This is one of the chief contentions in the action, the complainant basing his charge that the loan was made in knowledge of the alleged frauds, Mr. Davis being present at the meeting at which the report of the accountant was read. It is also claimed that he received a bonus of 15,000 shares of stock for putting through the loan.

Dexter, Osborne & Fleming of 71 Broadway are counsel for Senator Agnew. Mr. Fleming was at one time a Director of the company.

FIREBUG MADE 7 ATTEMPTS.

Detective on Watch in Tenement Greets Him with Shot, but He Escapes.

Seven attempts have been made within the last ten days to burn the tenement house at 140 West Twenty-ninth Street. The last was made early yesterday morning, when a man, leaning through the skylight, lowered a bundle of blazing oil-soaked papers almost into the face of Detective Kieffer of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who was watching the house.

The detective fired at the shadowy figure above, but the man escaped. All day yesterday the house was under police surveillance.

Ten days ago a fire was discovered in the air shaft of the house, where oil had been sprinkled freely. The same day a bundle of oil-soaked paper and rags was found blazing in the cellar. The next day the same thing happened. Each time the fire was discovered in time, so that no great damage was done.

Sunday morning the janitor found a bunch of oil-soaked paper and rags near the cellar stairs. Later another bundle, on fire, was discovered in the cellar. About 11 o'clock Sunday night another fire was discovered in an empty apartment on the top floor.

Then the police were sent for, and it was while guarding the house that Detective Kieffer saw the ball of fire descend from the skylight. He made a quick search, but the firebug got away. The tenants in the house are Greek, and the police have come to the conclusion that the fires were the work of some Greek secret society.

Another fire, of undoubted incendiary origin, was discovered early yesterday morning at 126-128 West Twenty-eighth Street. The blaze was extinguished with small loss. When Hook and Ladder Company 26 arrived the firemen found the fire-escape on the third floor in the rear congested with persons who could not get down. They were carried down on a ladder.

On the fourth floor the firemen found Giovanni Pardello sleeping in the room next to that in which the fire started. He was hauled out of bed, but not before his feet were slightly burned. An investigation after the fire showed that the walls of the burned apartment had been sprinkled with oil, and pools of oil were found on the floor.

GEMS BOECK STOLE IN COURT.

$175,000 Worth on View as Prisoner Faces Judge—His Sentence Delayed.

Edward J. Boeck, who had pleaded guilty to stealing about $200,000 worth of jewelry, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Goff, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, while the various articles which he had stolen were presented in evidence. Only one piece was missing, a $25,000 diamond necklace, which Boeck told the Justice he had sold in San Francisco for $2,000. Everything else was found in pawnshops about the city.

Justice Goff ordered that none of this jewelry be now returned to the owners most of whom were in court, as the legal ownership would be settled in civil courts by suits of replevin.

Boeck, who is a man of about 50 years, sold jewelry on commission and was so trusted that jewelers turned over valuable articles to him on his assurance that he wished to show them to prospective purchasers. It was jewelry obtained in this way that he pawned. He was arrested several weeks ago in San Francisco, where he encountered one of the District Attorney's detectives on the street. He may be sentenced, if the maximum is given, to seventy years in Sing Sing. He was remanded to the Tombs till Wednesday.

DINNER TO CARDINAL LOGUE.

Archbishop Farley the Host—Chairmen of Memorial Committees There.

The final official act in connection with the centennial celebration of the Catholic diocese of New York took place last night in the form of a farewell dinner given by Archbishop Farley to Cardinal Logue and the Chairmen of the various committees which managed the memorial affair, at the episcopal residence, Madison Avenue and Fiftieth Street. A reception to the members of the committees followed the dinner.

Among those at the dinner besides Cardinal Logue and the Archbishop were ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, General Chairman, who sat at the right of the Cardinal; John D. Crimmins, Bishop Brown, Herman Ridder, Mgrs. Mooney, Lavelle, and Hayes, Dr. G. J. McMackin, the Rev. Father Robert Quinn, and the Rev. Father J. Brown. There were no speeches.

Mr. Butler presented Cardinal Logue and the Archbishop with handsome gold fac similes of the medals worn by members of the Catholic Club in the parade of centennial week.

Cardinal Logue will leave this morning for Rochester and Niagara Falls. He will return early next week, but further than this his plans have not been announced.

BAD BOYS' SCHOOLS NEXT.

Board of Education Decides to Establish Disciplinary Rooms.

Firmly convinced, apparently, that disciplinary schools are a necessary adjunct to the public school system of New York, two committees of the Board of Superintendents are now engaged, the one upon selecting suitable locations for such schools, and the other upon finding the best-equipped teachers for the work.

It has already been demonstrated that the Board of Education, in prohibiting corporal punishment, and in subsequently punishing teachers who whipped or struck pupils in their charge, is opposed to general corporal punishment. It is generally believed, also, by those in touch with the parents, that they, too, are opposed to corporal punishment administered by teachers or Principals. But at the same time it is admitted by teachers that there are numerous half-grown boys in the school who are incorrigible.

To meet this situation, therefore, the Board of Education asked one of its standing committees to consider the feasibility of disciplinary schools to which would be sent the incorrigibles. It is not expected that there will be any girls in the new schools.

TO HAVE SCHOOL FOR DEAF.

Miss Regan to be Principal of a New Educational Department.

Miss Margaret A. Regan, Principal of Public School 107 in West Tenth Street, Manhattan, has been elected Principal of the first public school for the deaf ever established in this city by the Board of City Superintendents. The Board of Education, which meets to-morrow afternoon, it is said, will confirm the selection.

The school will be opened in September in the old building in Twenty-third Street near Third Avenue. Workmen are renovating and equipping the building for its new uses.

The instruction will be conducted by lip reading exclusively, and three years will be allotted for learning lip reading and speaking, when the usual branches of the public schools will be taken up. Manual training, with a view to aid the pupils in becoming self-supporting, will be made a special feature of the course.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

WESTBOROUGH, Mass., May 11.—A fire, which at one time threatened the business section of the town, to-day destroyed a factory building used as a storage warehouse, and containing 2,000 beds owned by the C. B. Foster Bedstead Company, and the local office and warehouse of the Armour Beef Company. The loss is estimated at $30,000.

CHATHAM, Ontario, May 11.—The principal block in the village of Merlin was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

MANIAC "EXHIBITS" TELL OF DELUSIONS

Insane Patients from Ward's Island and Taken Before Audience at Academy of Medicine.

PARANOIAC WITH A MILLION

Another in the Toils of "Electrical Control," While a Third Has a Story to Tell.

Three inmates of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, on Ward's Island, appeared last night in the Academy of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, at a meeting of the section on neurology and psychiatry, before an audience composed for the most part of men in the medical and legal professions, in which there were a few women.

After Dr. C. Floyd Haviland had spoken upon paranoia and epileptic mania, the three patients were introduced to the audience as "exhibits." They talked about their cases with the audience and answered any questions that were put to them.

The first to be exhibited was a young German who had been employed in a Wall Street house as a stenographer. He made a demand upon the firm for money, was arrested, and ultimately sent to the Manhattan State Hospital. He was classed as a case of paranoia. Dr. Floyd asked him if he had told a Police Magistrate that he was a millionaire.

"It was like this," said the patient. "I had been earning $50,000 or $60,000 a year, which I can prove. That was 4 per cent. on a million dollars. So I was practically a millionaire. And so I said I was. I withdrew from the firm by which I was employed.

"I had traveled abroad with the senior member of my firm and had been told by the houses in Europe with which they did business to let them know whenever there was anything wrong in Wall Street. I wrote to these firms last Fall before the panic telling them that there was going to be trouble, so they acted on my advice and made lots of money. About the demand that I made for money on my firm: I had collected a debt for them in Germany and they had agreed verbally to give me half, so I asked for my $12,000."

"What was the motive of the people that prosecuted you? Was your employer hostile to you?" was asked.

"My employer was not hostile to me, but he was under the influence of his relatives."

"What was their motive?"

"They wanted to force me out of the business," returned the patient, "and put in a lot of nephews and cousins."

Dr. Haviland sent "Exhibit A" back to the keeper in the hall and then remarked that the next patient also was a case of paranoia. He added that the man had shot and seriously hurt a man twenty years ago in San Francisco. The patient said that a minor prison official on the coast had placed him under electric influence, so that he suffered greatly after coming to New York and obtained employment as a watchman. When placed in a chair facing the audience the patient proved to be an Irishman with a bit of a brogue.

"I've been waiting for a chance like this," said the patient. "I want to meet a body of American men and have them see if I am insane. I am an American myself. I came to this country when I was nine months old."

"What do you think about your case, about your being insane?" he was asked.

"I have no opinion about it," returned the patient. "My opinion amounts to nothing. If it did I wouldn't be on Ward's Island."

"What do other people think about it?"

"I don't know anything about their opinions. Have I got to be held responsible for their opinions and put in an insane asylum?"

"What about that electric control of you?"

"I heard what the doctor said about it. But there isn't a word of truth in it. I have been converted and am trying to uplift the lowly and clothe the naked. I haven't been persecuted. I haven't any delusions."

"Haven't you had any strange experiences?" asked Dr. Haviland.

"What if I have? Is that any reason why I should be put in an asylum?"

"Who is persecuting you?"

The patient, forgetting that he had said he wasn't persecuted or that he hadn't any delusions, burst out strongly:

"It's Ben Chambers."

Chambers, he explained, had been a Deputy Warden in California.

"What about this electricity?"

"I don't know anything about electricity. But there are some strange things done with it. I don't say so myself, but I accept the word of such men as Edison. They know."

Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, who was presiding, leaned over the table and asked the patient if he would kill one of his tormentors if he could. Dr. Haviland had told the audience before presenting the patient that he had said he would.

"I would kill them if I could," he said. "wouldn't you?" Ben Chambers has had his men around me for a good many years. What else is an American citizen to do? The man I shot out West was a thug. It was in a row over a poker game in Dutch Fred's place, and I had put down a $10 gold piece and walked out."

The next patient was a melancholy bearded Austrian. Dr. Haviland said he had been a musician, who at times became violent, assaulted people, and broke furniture. In a dream state after one of these periods he heard voices and music.

The patient mounted the platform and bowed to the audience.

"Good evening, gentlemen," said he. "You must excuse my English. I am Austrian, and I have first to think in German and then translate into English. When I come out of those states in which I try to hurt my dear parents I hear all of the music that I used to play in the orchestra, and I hear the voices of Lillian Russell and all of those stars at whose feet I used to play in Chicago."

Assistant District Attorney Arthur Train read a paper on insanity as a defense for crime, in which he advocated such legal changes as would establish a permanent medical commission to pass upon the state of mind of the prisoner at the time a crime was committed, whenever the defense offered was insanity. This could be brought about by a change in the Penal Code of a couple of hundred words. Mr. Train thought that the plea of insanity generally resulted only in a verdict in a lesser degree.

A discussion followed, which was participated in by Bartow S. Weeks, who opposed the idea of a permanent medical commission, Judge Dike of Brooklyn, Assistant District Attorney Nott, and others.

MR. REA WARNS WALL STREET.

Pennsylvania Railroad Official Says Conditions Don't Warrant Optimism.

Samuel Rea, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was in Boston yesterday, was quoted from that city in dispatches which reached Wall Street as saying that the business men of the country were not yet out of the woods, and that it is necessary for everybody to economize.

"Business conditions at present and those immediately in sight," Mr. Rea said, "do not warrant Wall Street's excessive optimism at this time. With the railroads reporting on April 29 surplus idle cars to the number of 413,000, it is needless to comment on the paralysis of business. Many of the railroads, and I include the Pennsylvania, will be in a position for some months to come to 'live off their fat.' The great success of the Pennsylvania bond sale has done much to create a hopeful, courageous sentiment."

In reference to rate increases Mr. Rea said:

"Washington says we must not reduce wages and the shipper says we must not advance rates. One course or the other in many instances must be adopted."

BADEAU DEFEATS BUDD.

Elected President of the Consolidated Exchange After a Hot Fight.

Charles H. Badeau, nominee on the regular ticket for President of the Consolidated Exchange, defeated Ogden D. Budd for re-election yesterday after an election fight which lasted all day, and turned the trading floor of the Exchange into a close imitation of a Tammany primary. No heads were broken on the floor, but there were times when the election noises rose above the din of trading. It was announced at 4 o'clock that Mr. Badeau had polled 446 votes against President Budd's 315. Mr. Badeau carried to success with him the full regular ticket, according to the latest figures issued last night. F. A. Luther, the candidate on the regular ticket, defeated Aron de Cordova for First Vice President, and the regular nominee, E. R. Betts, defeated H. G. Romaine for Second Vice President. E. R. Grant, Treasurer, and Valentine Mott, Chairman, were re-elected without opposition.

The Consolidated Exchange has many members who never appear on the floor, and a dozen taxicabs were kept busy all the time the polls were open, scouring the financial district for possible voters. The result was a vote of 762 out of 1,200 members, the largest ever cast on the Exchange. There were 762 ballots cast, but one was thrown out.

The annual election on the Stock Exchange also was held yesterday, but with only one ticket in the field, which named President R. H. Thomas for re-election, there was no contest. The result will not be officially made known until to-day.

BROKERS' GOLF TOURNAMENT.

Stock Exchange Members Ready for Annual Contest on May 16.

Stock Exchange golfers will play their twelfth annual tournament on Saturday, May 16, at the Knollwood Country Club, at Elmsford, Westchester. Richard King, the Secretary and Treasurer, reports that he has already received ninety entries.

The tournament is a handicap with first, second, and third prizes for lowest net scores and a gold medal for lowest gross score. The tournament has always been held at the Knollwood club, which extends the privileges of the house to Stock Exchange members during the tournament.

Some of the well-known golfers who have entered are C. B. Macdonald, A. L. Norris, H. F. Whitney, Daniel Chauncey, Daniel Bacon, J. J. Manning, J. G. Dettmer, and W. P. Simons, who won the second cup at Garden City last week.

MULTIPHONE CO. BANKRUPT.

Creditors Charge That the Firm's Officers Wasted Its Assets.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Multiphone Company, manufacturer of musical slot machines, automatic phonographs, &c., with offices at 141 Broadway, by Peter Zucker, attorney for the following creditors: Isaac Thorman, $900; Vandyck, Churchill & Co., $200, and Jacob Weiss, $183, on an assigned claim of Albers Brothers.

It was alleged that while insolvent the company transferred part of its property to creditors to prefer them, concealed or removed, or permitted to be concealed or removed, a considerable portion of its property, and permitted a judgment to be taken against it for $271 by E. H. Leggett.

Judge Hough appointed Jesse Watson receiver on application of Isaac Thorman, who stated on information and belief that the assets of the company have been wasted by its officers; that over $120,000 of the assets have been expended and no record whatsoever appears on the books of the company as to the disposition of this sum; that on Nov. 2, 1907, the company gave to Paul H. Sheridan as trustee a chattel mortgage of $100,000, covering chattels of the company, which was not recorded until March 21, 1908, which mortgage, Mr. Thorman believes, is fraudulent and void as to the creditors of the company.

Plated Ware Firm Fails.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the H. & H. Manufacturing Company, copper, brass, and nickel plated ware, 554-562 West Twenty-fifth Street, by these creditors: David C. Whyte, $900; Joseph Fuhrmann, $100, and Charles Fox, $10. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, and on May 6 made preferential payments of $680 to two creditors. Judge Hough appointed James N. Rosenberg receiver. The liabilities are $110,000 and the assets $50,000. The company was incorporated May 14, 1901, with a capital stock of $100,000, which was increased in December to $325,000.

Toledo Traction Plans.

After a meeting of representatives of the creditors of the Toledo Railways and Light Company with some of the principal bondholders yesterday a committee was appointed to formulate a definite plan to take care of the company's outstanding indebtedness and put it again in strong financial shape.
